MASSACRE SURVIVORS STARVING

PENNED IN DEATH CITY, JEWS FACE NEW HORROR

FIRST VICTIM IN "SPOTLESS TOWN" CRUSADE TALKS SUIT

Youth Threatens Also to Place His Grievance Before Commissioner O'Meara.

Stoutly Denies Breaking New Order by Scattering Paper in the Street.

Albert G. Fegal, sixteen years old, the first person arrested under the new enforcement of the ordinance that prohibits throwing rubbish in the streets to-day, threatens to sue the policeman who locked him up and to prefer charges with Police Commissioner O'Meara, through whose orders the ordinance is being enforced.

Yesterday afternoon Officer Twombly of the Joy street station arrested Fegal, who lives at No. 4 Salem place, North End, for violating the ordinance. Young Fegal is to be arraigned in the Juvenile Court to-day to answer to the charge.

Says Arrest Unjustified.

According to Fegal, whose father is a clothing dealer, of No. 18 Salem street, his arrest was not justified. To a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter he said to-day:

"I will push this through to the end, and if I am fined I will appeal. My lawyer is so instructed. I was standing in front of D. Caplan's store, at No. 56 Lowell street yesterday, where I am employed as a clerk, and this officer came along. He pointed to some paper in the street which had fallen from an ash cart that had passed along some time before, and said to me: 'You pick that paper up right away,' and I refused, because I told him that I did not throw it there.

"He made some more talk and finally asked me what my name was, and as I had done no wrong I would not tell him. Then he took me to the patrol box and sent me to the station in the patrol wagon.

"I protest against such action on the part of a police officer.

"I will fight this case to a finish and I will prefer charges against this officer, whose action was unwarranted."

Two other alleged violators of the ordinance, who were summoned yesterday, will be in court to-day for judgment.

R. F. FEGAL, FIRST "SPOTLESS TOWN" VICTIM

FINED $5 FOR THROWING RUBBISH INTO THE STREET

Because he gave no heed to Police Commissioner O'Meara's order that every citizen must assist in making Boston "Spotless Town," Libreato Maravercello was fined $5 in the South Boston District Court by Judge Fallon to-day. Maravercello was charged by Officer Tufts with throwing rubbish in the streets.

BELIEVE U. S. WARSHIP ON WAY TO CUBA

Takes on Large Supply of Ammunition and Sails Under Secret Orders.

PORTSMOUTH, Va., Sept. 11.—The United States cruiser Des Moines, Commander Abraham E. Colver, has sailed under sealed orders. On Sunday orders were sent to the naval magazine here for a large consignment of ammunition of small calibre, which was prepared and hustled aboard the Des Moines, together with a big shipment of stores. The Des Moines is believed to have gone to Cuba.

TRUST YIELDS TO AMERICAN

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—A clinching victory was won yesterday by Clarence J. Shearn, counsel for the New York American, in behalf of all illuminating gas consumers in this city, when a signed stipulation was entered into that hereafter the Gas Trust would not contest any of the cases brought against it by Mr. Shearn and would accept the straight 80-cent rate in every case where he appears as counsel.

Twenty-three injunctions were obtained yesterday from the Supreme Court directing the trust to furnish gas to consumers at 80 cents in accordance with the court's recent decision.

INDEPENDENCE LEAGUE IN CONVENTION TO-DAY

NEW YORK STATE DELEGATES BRING CHEERING REPORTS AND ARE SURE OF VICTORY.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—To-day the State Convention of the Independence League, the most remarkable political gathering ever held in this country, will be called to order in Carnegie Hall by Max F. Ihmsen, State chairman.

Willard A. Glenn of Syracuse is temporary chairman, and William A. De Ford of Manhattan temporary secretary.

Justice Samuel Seabury of the City Court will, in all probability, be elected permanent chairman.

There are 1,611 delegates in attendance at the gathering to-day and indications favor a free, open and harmonious convention.

Five minutes spent among the throng of delegates in the corridors of the Gilsey House afforded convincing evidence of the fact that the big gathering in Carnegie Hall will be the most notable political convention ever held in New York.

The dominant feature is the absence of bosses and the free interchange of views among the delegates. The general feeling was that all had come to advance a cause that promises the Empire State redemption from boss rule, and that whatever differences of view that may exist among the delegates will be settled in a friendly spirit and for the good of all on the floor of the convention.

After an all-night session in the Gilsey House the State committee of the League early to-day by a vote of 140 to 8 adopted a resolution offered by former State Senator Mackey, of Buffalo, referring the proposition of fusion with the Democratic party made by William J. Conners, also of Buffalo, to the League convention to-day with a recommendation that is be submitted to the committee on resolutions when appointed.

The Connors proposition is that the league convention defer action on the State ticket until after the meeting of the Democratic State Convention at Buffalo on September 25.

The adoption of the Mackey resolution means that the Independence League Convention will nominate a straight ticket and appoint a committee to confer with a similar committee representing the Democratic State Convention looking toward fusion.

After listening to the arguments of the State committeemen, pro and con, on the Connors proposition, Mr. Hearst consented to address the committee, at 2:30 this morning. He spoke for some time. He said:

Hearst Speaks to Convention.

"Gentlemen—I am not here to attempt to impress my views upon this meeting. I would not be here at all, except at what I understand is your invitation. I do not know exactly what you want me to do. I expect rather to learn what you want than to attempt to tell you what I want.

"A gentleman has said that I ought to be excluded from this discussion because it would put me in an embarrassing position, and I have never hesitated to express my opinions; so, if what you want

WHAT WILL MORAN DO ABOUT ALDERMEN'S DEAL

REFUSES TO DISCUSS COURSE AS TO CAULEY'S ELECTION, AS IT IS OFFICIAL BUSINESS.

Politicians are centring their attention on the office of the District Attorney today and to see if Mr. Moran is to take any official action on the resignation of Alderman Charles M. Draper as chairman of the Board, and the election of Alderman Edward L. Cauley as his successor.

The resignation of Draper comes as a belated aftermath of the notorious agreement entered into last Spring when Draper was finally elected to the chairmanship after a prolonged deadlock in the board.

The Mayor and Aldermen Baldwin, Bangs, Bell, Cauley, Curley, Draper and Hennessey arrived at an understanding to this effect:

Cards were to be drawn. The winners of two marked cards were to divide the chairmanship between them, one to serve till August 1, the other for the remainder of the year.

By this happy plan it fell out that Draper won the first term of five months. It was "understood" that he was to resign then, and that Cauley was to succeed him.

The deal kicked up considerable political dust and disgust, but it "went," nevertheless.

Unexpectedly, however, District Attorney Moran took a hand in this card game by summonsing Draper, Cauley, Curley, Bangs, Bell, Baldwin and Hennessey and Mayor's Secretary Daniel T. O'Connell before the Grand Jury to testify about the alleged illegal method of electing a city official. The Grand Jury returned "no bill," but a considerable scare was thrown into the politicians.

One result was that Draper did not resign the chairmanship on August 1. It looked as though he would keep the chair till the end of the year and as though Cauley would get left.

At yesterday's meeting of the Aldermen, however, Chairman Draper resigned. He did it very quietly, saying he did it of his own volition entirely, and that, as the administration was Democratic, a Democrat should preside over the Aldermen.

The board then balloted for a new chairman, as follows:

For Cauley—Baldwin, Bangs, Bell, Cauley, Curley, Draper, Hennessey and Kneeland—8.
For Bromberg—Berwin—1.
For Berwin—Battis and Bromberg—2.
Not voting—Whelton and Linehan—2.

It will be noted that the old combine plus Alderman Kneeland, voted for Cauley.

Now that the old agreement has been carried out, just as the cards ordered it in that little game last Spring, the political ones are wondering if the District Attorney will ask for a hand again.

Officials Check Awful Slaughter by Troops, but Famine Follows Destruction of Houses and Stores.

WARSAW, Poland, Spt. 11.—Siedlce, the scene of the most recent anti-Jewish massacre, is to-day a city of chaos. Peace has been restored, temporarily at least, but no effort has been made to remove the stains of the horrors committed there.

After a resumption of the massacre in the early hours of the morning the soldiers were called off, the authorities evidently being convinced that the Jews would fight to the end rather than surrender members of their self-defence association to certain death or torture, at Governor Engelke's command. Troops are still encamped in the streets, however.

Famine now threatens the city as the destruction of the bakeshops and other stores has made it impossible to feed the destitute. Although every hour makes conditions worse, no one is allowed to leave the city. The authorities are bent on capturing the terrorists they hold responsible for inciting the outbreak, and no one is allowed to pass the city limits lest some terrorists escape. Figures given to-day in regard to the casualties during the massacre fix the number of killed at 170 and the wounded at 400. Many of the injured will die.

Houses Battered Down.

Six houses were destroyed by the artillery fire of yesterday and this morning. Twenty-seven Jewish houses were burned. Every shop on four streets in the Jewish quarter was looted. Traces of the ravages of the infuriated soldiers who engaged in the attack are to be seen on every side.

Many persons have been without food since Sunday night, yet are unable to obtain a morsel to eat. Many Jews have been driven insane by the atrocities on their relatives and friends, of which they were the witnesses. During the disorder which prevails it is impossible to care for those unfortunates.

Victims Tortured.

Cruelties of the most horrible character are now known to have been practised upon helpless Jews who fell into the hands of the drunken soldiers and "hooligans" engaged in the looting of the Ghetto. Many victims were not killed outright, but were tortured for hours before death came to relieve their sufferings.

Soldiers hacked Jews to pieces with their knives or swords. A nose or an ear would be cut off, then fingers and toes, to be followed by the feet and hands of victims. Finally the arms and legs would be cut away. This form of torture was varied at times to the opening of arteries, leaving the victims to bleed to death, while the brutal soldiers stood about and jeered at their sufferings.

Women became the special victims of the fiends. In many instances their clothes were torn off, and lighted candles were passed across their bare bodies, inflicting agonizing burns.

Burn House With Victims.

In one instance the Jew baiters set fire to a house in which eight luckless Hebrews had taken refuge, intending to shoot down their victims as they rushed from the burning structure. The Jews preferred to be burned alive in the house rather than entrust themselves to the merciless soldiers and remained inside.

This form of murdering Jews was several times resorted to, and it is estimated that fully forty Hebrews were burned alive in their homes by their own choice in preference to rushing outside to face worse torments.

At Rudguszowska, forty miles east of Warsaw, and which is the site of the great Zirardow mills, scenes similar to those enacted at Siedlce were witnessed. The soldiers are said to have killed forty persons.

Forty Killed Near Warsaw.

Fugitives from Siedlce report that Governor Engike issued an ultimatum declaring that he would bombard the whole town unless the terrorists surrendered.

In consequence of the pillage and destruction the citizens are suffering for food and water.

A telegram from a resident of Siedlce says that pillaging commenced Saturday night instead of Sunday, after a few minutes of firing in Warsaw street. The soldiers broke into gin shops, became drunk and then entered indiscriminately the apartments or houses of all classes, killing, pillaging and committing, under the cover of the walls the most heinous crimes.

The pillage and demolition beginning early Saturday was not slackened until Monday morning, and continued intermittently throughout the day. The town is cordoned and the railroad station, which is in the outskirts of the town, is isolated, and Jews and Poles seeking to reach the station are turned back en masse. Trains are made to stop half a mile away to prevent civilians entering them.

Two more battalions of troops have arrived from Bialystok.

The streets where the pillage raged unchecked are clearly marked by blackened walls, burned houses, broken windows and shattered doors. Not a single store is intact in Warsaw and Peknaya, the principal commercial streets.

Most of the victims now in hospitals are wounded by gunshots or bayonets, showing the responsibility of the soldiery. Crowds of roughs are ranging the street under the encouragement and protection of the police and the Jewish inhabitants are hiding like rabbits.

NEW YORK LEAGUE CONVENES

Independence Delegates Meet To-day; Confident of Victory.

NO "BOSSES" THERE

is my opinion, I am willing to express it, whether it is embarrassing or not.

"I think that what little success I have made has been due to the fact that I have always tried to be honest and let everybody know exactly what I thought and why I thought it.

"Now, gentlemen, I am opposed, of course, to this proposition that has been submitted, and as has been said, there is no one in this hall in favor of it. If the Democratic party had completed its primaries and selected men who represented the rank and file, and not the Ryan-Belmont interests, and had assembled in convention and declared for principles identical with ours and had wished then to unite with us and combine against a united opposition, I think we would be unwise to refuse to consider an honest proposal.

Against Sacrifice of Principles.

"I think this, not because I am particularly anxious to be elected Governor, because I am not willing to be elected Governor by any sacrifice of principles, but I do think it is due the people who have followed us and our supporters to be elected to something, some time, and to put into practice and practical operation the principles we stand for, not for our benefit, but for the benefit of the people of this country and State.

Now, as I understand it, Judge Seabury's proposition is one which would allow us to be in the position I have just recited. It would practically allow us to name our candidate, as I understand it. It would allow us to be in a position where we could go ahead absolutely independently, or, we could combine if we could combine honorably. It seems to me to be a wise proposition, and, in conclusion, I want to say this:

"There have been several references to a deal here to-night, and I do not think that any one suspected of having entered into a deal should be a candidate for any office before our convention."

"Now, gentlemen, as I said in the beginning, I have no desires to impose my views upon this assemblage. I would rather know what you want than to tell on what I want, but if you wish my views, there they are, offered merely for your consideration."

At the all-night session of the State committee the question of fusion as proposed by prominent delegates to the Buffalo convention was taken up and it was still under consideration at an early hour this morning when Mr. Hearst was sent for to take part in the exchange of views which was then under way.

Max F. Ihmsen, state chairman, called the meeting to order and immediately after the temporary officers of to-day's convention had been selected, the question of fusion was called up by the presentation of a petition signed by seventy-five delegates to the Democratic convention, who had been instructed to vote for Mr. Hearst at Buffalo, asking the Independence League to defer placing a State ticket in the field until the meeting of the Buffalo convention.

The petition gave assurance that the Democracy of New York State, as represented by the petitioners, is at one with the principles and purposes of William Randolph Hearst, to whom they paid warm tribute, and the Independence League, and was accompanied by a letter from William J. Conners of Buffalo, urging its consideration. Both the petition and letter are printed in full in another column.

Discussion on Proposition.

Mr. Conners was invited to address the committee, which he did at length, after which discussion of the proposition became general.

Judge Samuel Seabury, Clarence J. Shearn, John Ford and Wallace Thayer of Buffalo made speeches upon the various propositions, of which these three were most prominently advanced and favored by various committeemen:

"That the proposition presented by Mr. Conners be accepted.

"That a full ticket be placed in nomination, irrespective of the plans of any other party.

"And that a full tentative ticket be placed in the field, with, in addition, the authorization of the appointment of a committee to go to Buffalo and confer with the Democratic managers there."

The discussion on these points continued until after 12 o'clock, when Mr. Thayer of Buffalo secured the floor.

"I can see but one thing for us to do," he said, "and that is to have a talk with Mr. Hearst. I am sure that we desire to defer to his wishes in the matter."

The proposition was adopted, and Reuben A. Lyon of Steuben, who had relieved Chairman Ihmsen in the chair, at once communicated with Mr. Hearst and appointed a committee to wait on him.

Committee Sees Mr. Hearst.

Mr. Hearst arrived at the Gilsey House fifteen minutes later, and after being waited on by the committee in his private quarters went at once to the committee room, where he was received with cheers and demands for a speech.

For the time being Mr. Hearst declined to make a speech.

"I desire," said he, "to listen to the discussion."

The arguments were then resumed. The utmost good feeling prevailed. On all sides there was evidenced a desire only to adopt the course which in the wisdom of the committee would best further the interests which all have at heart.

SHOW 200 RUGS IN 15 MINUTES

If the smartest rug salesman on earth were to set up a claim that he could show you within fifteen minutes 200 large rugs, not in bulk, but one after another, you would probably put him down as a boaster, with small regard for the truth.

Nevertheless there are in Boston several smart rug salesmen who can do this very thing.

But they are only to be found in one store, the Arthur McArthur Company's big furniture establishment on Washington street, directly opposite the Adams square station.

A simple but ingenious mechanical contrivance called "The Rug Rack" comes to the aid of the busy salesmen at McArthur's and enables them to accomplish a feat which, without mechanical assistance, would be a physical impossibility.

The rack has a capacity of 200 large rugs at a time, and by a skilful arrangement of electric lights, the visitor can examine at close quarters every inch of the rug on exhibition. Furthermore, the rugs are not creased or folded, but stretched taut—just as they would be if carefully laid on your own floor at home.

This is only one of the new things worth seeing at McArthur's. The rug rack is in the carpet department on the third floor. The five other floors of the big building, each of them running through from Washington street to Brattle square, is loaded down with furniture to suit all tastes and pocketbooks.

EIGHT-HOUR LAW VIOLATED ON WORK FOR STATE IN ARLINGTON

FOREMAN ROBINSON AND GANG AT WORK.

FOREMAN ADMITS BREAKING EIGHT-HOUR LAW.

BY GEORGE ROBINSON.

Yes, I am working my gang nine hours a day. I employ about twenty men. My books are open to anybody. I pay by the hour. It will cost me about $2 a day for my help. I shall work the men what hours I can. Some days the hours will be short. For the present we are working nine hours.

We have to work the men according to the exigencies that arise. Now it is plain sailing, just digging and shovelling. Later, at concreting, the hours will be broken up. Sometimes they won't get in more than three or four hours a day. It won't average eight hours a day and we are paying by the hour, and we are paying more than we ought at that.

I don't know just what the law is, but it has been said that it allowed forty-eight hours' work a week. I frankly say that I am working my men as many hours each day as I can, and it will not average forty-eight hours a week in the long run.

BIG CLEARANCE SALE IS BEGUN IN FURNITURE

C. E. Osgood Co. Is Striving for Records in the Slaughtering of Prices.

In opening their thirty-first semi-annual clearance sale yesterday, the C. E. Osgood Co., the house furnishers, whose establishment on Washington street is known far and wide, assert that they have inaugurated one of the biggest sales, where prices will be slaughtered mercilessly, that was ever held in New England. Following its principle of giving best values for the money, the company has now cut its original prices down to the actual bona fide "rock-bottom" price, and the five acres of floor space occupied by the display rooms will present a busy scene during the sale, which will last only a short time.

The Osgood company claims to have been the originators of furniture sample sales, and in this respect the present sale is expected to go on record as the largest and most effective sale of the kind yet held.

Over 100 pieces of furniture of the Mission style, which is enjoying a great vogue with discriminating house furnishers, are included in the sale, and the prices are surprisingly moderate. Such odd furniture as would lend an air of comfort and quiet elegance to dens, libraries and reception halls are also included in the big sacrifice sale, and as the furniture and the prices are equally attractive it is not reasonable to suppose that the stock will last very long.

On the parlor floor of the establishment there are 258 sample parlor suites ranging in price from $14.85 to $250, and this is pronounced one of the most extensive collections of sample suites ever offered at one time.

A feature of this sale calculated to appeal particularly to the patrons of the store is the opportunity offered for buying furniture at cash prices and at the same time taking advantage of the "Osgood Six Months' Credit Plan," which allows a liberal credit without extra cost, providing the accounts are settled promptly and within a period of six months.

Every piece of furniture in the establishment is plainly marked with both the original and the sacrifice price, and visitors are welcome at the warerooms.

HUB TYPOS WIN FRESH VICTORY

Boston Typographical Union No. 13 has scored another victory in its fight for an eight-hour workday for the book and job printers. The Foreign Language Press Company signed the eight-hour agreement, and its fourteen expert compositors who struck February 1 were all directed to return by the union.

Jean DePeiffer, the president of the company, has withdrawn from the Boston Typothetae.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Henry Metleman, a mineral water manufacturer, was fatally injured to-night by an explosion of a water tank at his establishment on East Broadway.

Contractor Defies Statute and Keeps Men Working Nine Hours Daily.

The C. A. Dodge & Co., contractors, who are building the new pumping station for the Metropolitan Water and Sewerage Board in the town of Arlington, are working their employes nine hours a day, in open violation of the eight-hour law which was passed by the last Legislature and went into effect on June 22. The company secured the contract for the work on August 23. They agreed to erect the pumping station for $28,328.

The gang of Italians engaged in making the excavation for the concrete foundation work go to work at 7 o'clock in the morning, have an hour for dinner and work until 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

"Yes, I am working my gang nine hours a day," said George Robinson of No. 1 Concord square, foreman of the pick and shovel men in the employ of the Dodge Company.

"I employ about twenty men," continued Robinson to a reporter for the BOSTON AMERICAN, in the presence of Engineer Clifford Foss, one of the engineers who is acting for the State in inspecting the work. "My books are open to anybody. I pay by the hour. It will cost me about $2 a day for my help. I shall work them what hours I can. Some days the hours will be short. For the present we are working nine hours.

Paying More Than We Ought To.

"We have to work the men according to the exigencies that arise. Now it is plain sailing, just digging and shovelling. Later, at concreting, the hours will be broken up. Sometimes the men will not get in more than three or four hours a day. It won't average eight hours a day, and we are paying by the hour and paying more than we ought to at that.

"I don't know just what the law is but it has been said that it allowed forty-eight hours a week. I am working the men as many hours each day as I can and then it will not average forty-eight hours a week in the long run."

E. H. Downing, of No. 1,261 Massachusetts avenue, Arlington Heights, says that the employes of Dodge & Co., who are are working on the new Metropolitan pumping station, had been working for several days for nine hours each day.

Jeremiah Crowley, of No. 46 Brattle street, Arlington, has watched the men at their work and declares that they have worked for more than eight hours a day for many days.

The contract between C. A. Dodge & Co. of No. 8 Beacon street, Boston, and the Metropolitan Water and Sewerage Board, which was made on August 23, stipulates that all laws of the Commonwealth shall be observed in the completion of the work on the new pumping station. Bonds for $3,000 were filed at the same time which release the town of Arlington from all liability for noncompliance with the terms and specifications of the contract or from any violation of the laws of the State.

Contract Refers to Law.

Special reference even is made in the contract to the eight-hour law, and the text of the recent act of the Legislature which went into effect on June 22 last is quoted that there be no misunderstanding.

The contract in its entirety is signed by Henry H. Sprague and James A. Bailey, Jr., for the Metropolitan Water and Sewerage Board, and by C. A. Dodge & Co., Charles A. Dodge and Charles L. Williams, contractors.

The contract consists of forty pages of printed matter. The articles refer to materials, plans, excavation, cement, lime, sand, stone, concrete, floors, roof, coal room, granite and seamfaced work, brownstone, brick walls, ironwork, carpenter work, glazing, sheet metal work, hardware, electric wiring, plumbing and drainage. Then follow the general sections which stipulate that work on the pumping station in Arlington shall commence by September 1, 1906, and be completed by April 15, 1907.

It is stipulated that the work of inspection shall not release the contractors from liability for their acts and that competent men shall be hired. It is expressly stipulated that:

"Contractors must keep themselves informed upon all existing and future State and national laws and municipal ordinances and regulations in any manner affecting those engaged or employed in the work and the material used or in any way affecting the conduct of the work, and of all such orders and decrees of bodies and tribunals having any jurisdiction or authority over the same, and shall protect and indemnify the Commonwealth and board and officers against claim of liability from violation of such laws, ordinances, regulations, or decrees, whether by themselves or their employes."

Then is stipulated: "In accordance with chapter 517, act of the year 1906, no laborer, workman or mechanic in the employ of a contractor, sub-contractor or other person doing or contracting to do the work or a part of the work contemplated shall be required to work more than eight hours in any one calendar day."

These specifications are all plainly drawn up and printed in the big forty-page contract between the Metropolitan Water and Sewerage Board and the members of C. A. Dodge & Co. Their own foreman in charge of the excavating gang acknowledges that the work is now being done in violation of the law of the Commonwealth, and two other witnesses as well as the engineer overlooking the work know that this is being done.

THE EIGHT-HOUR LAW.

Section 1—Eight hours shall constitute a day's work for all laborers, workmen and mechanics now or hereafter employed, by or on behalf of the Commonwealth, or of any county therein, or of any city or town which has accepted the provisions of Section 20 of Chapter 106 of the Revised Laws; but in cases where a Saturday half-holiday is given, the hours of labor upon the other working days may be increased sufficiently to make a total of forty-eight hours for the week's work.

Section 2—Every contract, excluding contracts for the purchase of material or supplies, to which the Commonwealth, or any county therein, or of any city or town which has accepted the provisions of Section 20 of Chapter 106 of the Revised Laws, is a party which may involve the employment of laborers, workmen or mechanics, shall contain a stipulation that no laborer, workman or mechanic in the employ of the contractor, sub-contractor or other person doing or contracting to do the whole or a part of the work contemplated by the contract shall be required to work more than eight hours in any one calendar day.

TROLLEY TRIPPING TIPS.

An extensive campaign of education carried on this year by the passenger department of the Boston & Northern and Old Colony street railway companies at No. 300 Washington street has brought a realization of the many delightful trips that may be taken by trolley. This has led to a great use by thousands of pleasure seekers of the electric cars all over eastern New England. The same office has also given freely information as to how and when and wheer to go that has relieved trolleying of its burdens and made it a real pleasure.

ACTIVITY OF QUINCY PUZZLE TO WILLIAMS

Fails to Explain Why Official Position Is Used in Gubernatorial Fight.

"I notice that Chairman Quincy of the Democratic State Committee fails to explain why he is using his official position in trying to solve the question between District Attorney Moran and his unknown," remarked George Fred Williams to the BOSTON AMERICAN representative today.

"he has no right as chairman to take sides in such a contest, and he should explain why he does so."

"How about Congressman Sullivan's reply to you?"

"I have not read it. I only take into consideration what Chairman Quincy has to say," remarked Mr. Williams.

"What do you think of the Maine election?"

"The results are most important, happening as they do in such a State. The vote on the governorship was, of course, based on local issues, and it demonstrates a great change in sentiment in that State, particularly on the question of prohibition.

"The real test came on the question of the re-election of Congressman Littlefield, and it goes to show that the people are waking up as to what should be done with corporation servants. Reducing his majority from 5,000 to 1,000 is a lesson not only to Maine, but to all the States of the Union, and particularly here at home, where we have some of the Littlefield type.

"The Republicans brought their big guns into the State and the great power of the national administration used to secure Littlefield's election. Two members of the cabinet, the speaker of the House, and even our seinor Senator were drafted to save the Congressman, yet they had a narrow escape.

"The district has not a very large labor constituency, so that the result is all the more significant."

SON OF EX-GOVERNOR BATES BREAKS ARM

GLOUCESTER, Sept. 11.—Harold Bates, the young son of ex-Gov. John L. Bates, had his right arm broken by a blow from the fly wheel of his father's launch, yesterday. The boy was resting comfortably last night.

SIEGEL STORE BLAZE OF COLOR FOR BIRTHDAY

Record Crowds Admire Beautiful Decorations and Listen to Women's Orchestra.

Two features of the anniversary celebration of Henry Siegel Company's big store stand out conspicuously—the decorations and the music.

Flags of all nations cover the entire Washington street front of the building, American flags, of course, predominating. The Stars and Stripes fly from every window on the block.

Inside the big store the decorations are plentiful and artistic, especially on the main floor, where, twined around all the stately white columns, are clusters of Autumn leaves made brilliant by thousands of colored electric lights.

The anniversary celebration, which is in honor of the big store's first birthday, will be kept up all this week. Henry Siegel, president of the company, came on from New York yesterday to meet and congratulate the heads of the various departments.

"I've seen many a large crowd of shoppers in many a large store," said Mr. Siegel, "but never such a large crowd as this. Boston certainly appreciates a good thing."

From 11:30 to-day Miss Rita Mario and her Empire Women's Orchestra will give a concert on the fifth floor of the establishment. Following is the program:

March, "Free Lance"	Sousa
Overture, "Semiramide"	Rossini
(a) Entracte from "Mlle. Modiste"	Herbert
(b) Characteristique, "Mouse and the Clock,"	Whitney
Request.
Selection, "Mikado"	Sullivan
Spanish Serenade, "La Paloma"	Balfour
Gems from "It Happened in Nordland"	Herbert
Intermezzo	Johnson
Request.
Selection, "Faust"	Gounod

Concerts will be given every day this week on the same floor and are free to the public.

NEW BISHOP CHOSEN.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., Sept. 11.—Rev. Fr. John March, rector of the Catholic cathedral at Harbor Grace, N. F., has been chosen bishop of Harbor Grace diocese.

A LETTER TO OUR READERS.

53 Cottage St., Melrose, Mass.

Dear Sir:

"Ever since I was in the Army, I had more or less kidney trouble, and within the past year it become so severe and complicated that I suffered everything and was much alarmed—my strength and power was fast leaving me. I saw an advertisement of Swamp-Root and wrote asking for advice. I began the use of the medicine and noted a decided improvement after taking Swamp-Root only a short time.

I continued its use and am thankful to say that I am entirely cured and strong. In order to be very sure about this, I had a doctor examine some of my water to-day and he pronounced it all right and in splendid condition.

I know that your Swamp-Root is purely vegetable and does not contain any harmful drugs. Thanking you for my complete recovery and recommending Swamp-Root to all sufferers I am,"

Very truly yours,

I. C. RICHARDSON.

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, sent absolutely free by mail, also a book telling all about Swamp-Root. If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at the drug stores everywhere. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

"I'LL FIGHT LOUIS CASSIER'S WILL TO HELP HIS BROTHER AND SISTER"

—MRS. OLIVE SPOONER SEAVERNS

North Scituate Woman with Whom Publisher Lived Says Her Claim Is Good.

Declares Her Right to Estate Is Better Than That of "the Other Woman."

By Eleanor Ames.

"UNDER the common law I was the wife of Louis P. Cassier and I am going to contest his will."

Mrs. Olive Gertrude Spooner Seaverns of North Situate paused in her vigorous work at the wash board and delivered the statement in determined tones through a cloud of soapy steam.

"I have a good personal claim," she continued, wiping the suds from her thin arms and straightening her tired back. "I have a better claim than this other woman whom I do not believe was ever legally married to Mr. Cassier. But my principal motive for contest is to help the brother and sister who have been cut off without a cent."

When Louis Cassier, the editor, publisher and man of letters, was killed in an English railroad wreck, a few months ago, none of the thousands who knew him and his publications dreamed that the probating of his will would bring to light two contesting widows and involve all his kinspeople in legal warfare.

Strangely enough the family of the dead man are recognizing, not the second widow, Agnes Nichols Cassier, of Trumbull, Ct., who was living with Mr. Cassier as his wife at the time of his tragic death, but have turned back to the half-forgotten woman in North Scituate, who in the heyday of her youth was proudly and affectionately acknowledged by Louis Cassier as his wife.

Dazzled With Her Beauty.

People in Scituate who have known Mrs. Seaverns since she was a babe in arms had almost forgotten the existence of the polished, prosperous husband of "Gertie" Spooner, who used often to visit at her home; and the days when with her radiant beauty, her exquisite clothes, her jewels and her prosperity she used to dazzle their eyes, have grown dim in memory.

Gertrude Spooner's mother died when she was a mere baby, leaving three daughters and a son.

Mr. Spooner, senior, married not long afterward, giving his little ones a stepmother, who is still living.

But as more children and younger came to the Spooner home, the older ones went to live with relatives and as they matured went out into the world to work.

Nettie and Gertie went to Boston.

They were both pretty and both succeeded. Gertie found a position with a family of wealth and went to New York. Her family did not hear from her for five years.

When she returned to them she was lovely beyond their imaginings, dressed in the latest style, and attended by a fine looking and distinguished gentleman, whom she introduced as "my husband, Louis P. Cassier."

"Louis Cassier just worshipped Gertie," said a half-sister. "Why, he thought she was perfect. We were all surprised when they separated. None of us knew why. I don't believe anyone ever knew. Gertie never talked her affairs over with anybody, not even her own family."

Yet separate they did, Gertrude going to the home of her sister Nettie, who had married a Litchfield man.

"Why did you and Mr. Cassier separate?" Mrs. Cassier was asked. She drew her mouth down at the corners, firmly.

"I left him of my own accord," she declared, emphatically. "That is all I care to say. At the time of the separation he told me that if I should ever be in want and should call on him he would help me.

"My lawyers have his letter where he said I should never want and that he would look out for me. It is true I was never married to him, but under the common law I was his wife."

"Then he supported you?" Mrs. Seaverns's face flushed and her eyes snapped.

"He did not," she said, with dignity. "I never called upon Louis Cassier to help me. I have had to work hard to make a living since I left him, but I would never have asked him for a cent.

Wants to Help His Folks.

"Now I feel that I have a better right and a better claim than the woman who is in possession.

"I am determined to get the money rightfully due me.

"Besides, if there's anything I can do to help his folks I'm going to do it. I want to see them get justice.

"I don't believe he ever intended to leave them entirely out of his will. It wasn't his nature. Some influence must have been brought to bear on him to make him forget his sister, who sacrificed her whole life that he might get an education.

"Why, Louis thought the world of his brother, Adolph, and I don't believe he would make a will and not mention Adolph in it.

"Mr. Cassier's relatives are the best kind of people. They always treated me fine. I wouldn't ask to be treated better. That's why I want to help them."

Nine years ago, after several years of separation, Mrs. Spooner-Cassier married Henry Seaverns, a painter, who is a few years her junior.

The Seaverns home is in Oakmut, between North Scituate and Cohasset. It is a double frame house, painted bright yellow. The furnishings are comfortable but plain.

Mr. Seaverns does not always have work and this Summer Mrs. Seaverns has been taking in washing to help out the income.

Illness and care have transformed the once pretty girl into a thin, pale woman, who looks much older than her 39 years. But it has not robbed her of her will and determination.

She will not acknowledge Mrs. Agnes Nichols Cassier, referring to her as "the other woman."

"This other woman," she said, in tones of much bitterness, "I have never met. I have heard that she is not in any way the equal of Mr. Cassier. Any way, since his death she has shown by her conduct that she has no real claim on him or his wealth.

"Why, as soon as I learned of his death, and directly after the funeral, I am told she tried to get Adolph Cassier to sign away all claim to the estate of his dead brother.

"Just as soon as I heard of Mr. Cassier's death I wrote to this woman, asking the date of his funeral. She never so much as answered.

"I suppose from that she didn't want me to be present at the funeral."

"Not Ashamed of Past."

"Mrs. Seaverns rocked vigorously back and forth.

"I am not a bit ashamed of my past life," she said, impetuously.

"My second husband knew all these facts when he married me. It is only on his account that I dread this publicity."

"Gertie has had an awful hard life, but story," said Mrs. Litchfield, "as to why she and Mr. Cassier parted. He promised to pay her board as long as she stayed with me. He didn't do it, but I intend his estate shall and I have lawyers fighting for me.

"Gerties has had an awful hard life, but she hasn't complained.

"When she was with Louis she had everything that money could buy. She never had to even wish for any luxury. It was hers before she thought of it."

By a strange coincidence, Benjamin H. Greenhood of Boston, who is Mrs. Seaverns's attorney, is a cousin of Mr. Cassier. He knows all the facts in the case and believes in his client's claim.

"The Scituate Mrs. Cassier is the first and legal wife of Louis Cassier and I will prove that fact beyond dispute when the case comes to trial in New York," said he, in speaking of the case.

"Was there ever a legal marriage?" Mr. Greenhood was asked.

"She was his legal wife according to the laws of New York at that time.

"He met her in New York when she was eighteen years old. For ten or twelve years they lived together as man and wife. Sometimes they kept house and sometimes they had apartments.

"He introduced her to his friends as his wife.

"We have many letters which he wrote to her during that time, all addressed to 'My dear wife,' and signed 'Your loving husband.'

"We will have many witnesses in court who visited at their home when they lived together."

"Why did they separate?"

"Because of a quarrel. Then came this other woman, who claims to be his wife."

"Was there a divorce?"

"Before her marriage to Mr. Seaverns, my client consulted an attorney, who told her the marriage in New York was not valid. She acted in good faith and in 1891 married Mr. Seaverns.

"The court can decide if the advice was correct. I contend it wasn't."

Mr. Greenhood has brought legal action in New York and will also in Connecticut.

He is also going to sue the English railroad where Mr. Cassier lost his life for damages in the name of the Scituate widow.

FOIL ANARCHISTS IN PLOT TO KILL KAISER

BRESLAU, Prussia, Sept. 11.—A plot to assassinate Kaiser William during the present army manoeuvres in this region has been frustrated through the activity of the secret police. Three anarchists involved in the conspiracy against the monarch are under arrest.

The prisoners are an Italian anarchist named Matacci, a Pole by the name of Landenberger and a Czech anarchist, Fielegner. Documents found in the possession of the prisoners show conclusively that they were associated with the inner circle of the international organization of anarchists and that the Kaiser's death was plotted by this organization.

All plans for the attack on the Kaiser had been carefully arranged and the plot was discovered just in the nick of time, as the conspirators were only waiting an opportunity to get near the Emperor while he is attending the manoeuvres. To-day might have given this opportunity.

Eugene N. Foss, candidate for the Republican nomination for Lieutenant Governor, opens his campaign to-night at Tomfohrde Hall, Boylston station, West Roxbury. Mr. Foss, ex-Mayor Hall of Cambridge, Henry B. Blackwell and others will speak.

This is the last day for substituting names for Democratic withdrawals from State primary papers. Closing hour, 5 p. m., Democratic city headquarters.

George B. Gates, referendum candidate for Congress in Tenth district, speaks to-night in Congress Hall, Broadway, Ward 13.

21 FIREMEN'S COMPANIES IN SALEM PARADE

Nearly 2,000 Men Participate in Big Playout on Common To-day.

$660 GIVEN IN PRIZES

By Boston American Leased Wire.

SALEM, Sept. 11.—With nearly two thousand red-shirted veteran firemen in line, the muster parade here today was one of the biggest firemen's reunions that has ever been held in New England. Thousands are witnessing the playout on the Salem Common this afternoon.

In the parade twenty-one veteran firemen's companies were in line with their apparatus, and as an escort of honor the entire city fire department turned out, with its new and modern fire fighting machines. The contrast was a novelty and the "regulars marched with the volunteers to the Common, where the parade was dismissed and the companies prepared for the playout.

Places for the playout were drawn, and resulted in the following order:

1—City of Lynn, Lynn.
2—White Angel, Salem.
3—Alabama Coon, Stoughton.
4—Enterprise, Campello.
5—Protection, Haverhill.
6—Converse, Malden.
7—Paul Revere, Revere.
8—Triumph, Berwick, Me.
9—Okes, Marblehead.
10—Governor Bradstreet, North Andover.
11—City of Lawrence, Lawrence.
12—General Taylor, Everett.
13—Fisherman, Gloucester.
14—Star of Jamaica, Jamaica Plain.
15—Hancock, Brockton.
16—City of Lowell, Lowell.
17—Protector, Amesbury.
18—Red Jackets, Cambridge.
19—Tiger, Newburyport.
20—Washington, Peabody.
21—Neptune, Newburyport.

The prizes aggregate $660, and the rivalry between some of the older companies who have met on the field of battle before promises to provide a red hot exhibition.

REPUBLICANS CLOSE TO DISASTER IN MAINE

LITTLEFIELD ELECTED BY GREATLY REDUCED VOTE; DEMOCRATS WIN CITIES.

In the State election in Maine yesterday the Republicans met with severe reverses, but succeeded in electing the major part of their ticket by greatly reduced majorities. The Sturgis law and the consequent rigid application of the prohibition statutes are blamed by the Republicans for their disaster.

COB'S PLURALITY 7,098.

The victory of the Republican party is shown in these figures: Governor Cobb gets 66,299 votes; Davis, Democrat, 59,201; Cobb's plurality, 7,098. In the past four years the Republicans have lost 24,400.

In the second Congressional district, where the fight was on between Congressman Littlefield, Republican, and Daniel J. McGillicuddy, Democrat, the vote is: Littlefield, 17,280; McGillicuddy, 16,146. These figures are not complete, as several towns are yet to be heard from. In four years the Republicans have lost in this district 4,458 votes.

Organized labor claims a big moral victory in the reduction of Littlefield's plurality. It has fought hard under the leadership of President Samuel Gompers. Owing to the closeness of the vote between Littlefield and McGillicuddy, it is now believed that the latter will ask for a recount.

The vote this year is the smallest plurality that the Republicans have ever polled since they recaptured the State from the Fusionists and Greenbackers in 1882. Governor Robie that year led his Democratic opponent, Plaisted, by 8,560 votes.

The Democrats have won their local fights in Portland, where Pennell is elected sheriff, and in the cities and towns of Bath, Biddeford, Bangor, Lewiston, Rockland, Augusta, Auburn, Brewer, Saco, South Portland, Westbrook, Ellsworth, Belfast, Waterville and Oldtown.

In the last session of the Legislature the Democrats had only four among thirty-one Senators and twenty-six out of 151 Representatives. It is expected that in the next session ten Democrats will occupy seats in the Senate and about sixty Representatives in the lower House.

Democrats Win in Cities.

Bath was the first city of importance to be heard from, and the returns created alarm at Republican State headquarters when it was seen that the city, for many years strongly Republican, had given Davis, Democratic candidate for Governor, a plurality of 240.

Rockland, the home city of Governor Cobb, gave a plurality of seventeen votes to his Democratic opponent, while Congressman Littlefield, also a resident of Rockland, carried the city by only twelve votes. Two years ago his plurality was 250.

Waterville, the home of Cyrus W. Davis, gave him a plurality of more than 500 over Cobb.

The cities of Bath, Rockland, Auburn, Belfast, Ellsworth and Augusta, the capital, considered as among the strongest Republican cities in the State, sent in pluralities for Davis. The handicap thus placed on Governor Cobb was only shaken off by the little towns which slowly but surely cut down the lead of Davis and finally sent Cobb into the lead.

Portland Democratic.

The entire Democratic county ticket is elected in Portland, and that city will have a full Democratic delegation in the legislature for the first time for many years.

It was a great victory for Sheriff Pennell, who led the Democratic fight, and against whom the strongest efforts of the Republicans were directed.

All towns in Cumberland county give Pennell a plurality of 820.

Democrats are already looking ahead to the municipal campaign and believe that the great victory of yesterday will insure the re-election of Mayor Clifford.

Amos L. Allen is re-elected and the Republican congressional delegation will remain unbroken. This county was not seconded by York county, and James C. Hamlen, Democratic Congressional candidate, failed of an election after a hard fight.

Congressman Edwin C. Burleigh of Augusta was re-elected in the Third District by a plurality of about 1,500 over the Democratic nominee, Edwin J. Lawrence of Fairfield.

Mr. Burleigh's purality in the four counties comprising the district was as follows: Hancock 600, Kennebec 400, Somerset 400, Waldo 125; total 1,525.

LABOR'S VICTORY, SAYS GOMPERS' AID

LEWISTON, Me., Sept. 11.—General Organizer Stuart Reed, President Gompers's personal representative, and manager of the labor campaign against Congressman Littlefield, after the election returns were in, gave out the following statement:

"We have won a great moral victory. It has been demonstrated that union men can stand together on the political as well as the industrial field. It is true that Littlefield has been re-elected, but his great majority of former years has been slashed to pieces; in fact, a few hundred votes would have consigned him to political oblivion.

"The union men stood shoulder to shoulder and several of them have been elected to the Legislature. The industrial centres administered a stinging rebuke to Littlefield. In every section where the unions had any strength Littlefield met with crushing defeat. The rural vote barely saved him.

"We fought against terrible odds. Corporate interests flooded the district with money. Speaker Cannon, Secretary Taft and Senator Lodge were rushed to Littlefield's assistance, and a personal appeal from President Roosevelt, seeking his re-election, was sent into the district.

"Yet, in spite of such heroic methods, Littlefield's majority was reduced by 1,000 or more votes. A little more than 300 votes would have defeated him.

"President Gompers put up a grand fight. His progress through the district was a triumphal march, and every point touched by him resulted in defeat for Littlefield. The great labor chief has demonstrated his power on the political field and rallied his men in a marvelous manner.

"Maine is probably the weakest union State in the country, and the result of this contest shows conclusively what will happen to opponents of organized labor in districts where the men are more thoroughly organized and the majorities much smaller than that of the Second District of Maine. Had Littlefield's district been half as well organized as those of many of labor's opponents now in Congress, he would have met a crushing defeat. Organized labor has surely demonstrated its ability to rebuke its political opponents.

"President Gompers may be well satisfied with the results in the Second District of Maine. He has inspired his men and his opponents must realize that from now on organized labor will fight and strike at the ballot box."

PROBE CRASH OF BATTLESHIPS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—The trial by court-martial of Captain Samuel P. Comely, commanding the battleship Alabama, and Lieutenant Alfred W. PRETTY ACTRESS CALLS CRITIC A "SILLY OWL"

Pretty Vaudeville Player Who Says People of Worcester Don't Know Art When They See It.

Nellie McCoy Says Worcester People Are Uneducated and Don't Appreciate High Class Ability.

WORCESTER, Sept. 11.—Worcester people are still surprised at the audacity of Miss Nellie McCoy, of theatrical fame, at calling them "uneducated."

Also, the dramatic critic whom the fair Nellie unkindly classified as a "silly owl" is sort of wondering just what volume of feminine wrath he uncorked when he failed to feature up Miss McCoy in his recent notice of her vaudeville act at a local theatre.

It seems that Miss McCoy was billed as a star, but on the programme she came somewhere down in the middle of the list. The management would naturally not use Miss McCoy as a minor act to "chase in the house," as they say.

But the dramatic critic in question in reviewing the show took the acts strictly in sequence. Also, according to Miss McCoy's tabasco letter, he unkindly noted that some of the other acts received more applause than hers did.

The next morning Miss McCoy called for the morning papers and started to read in pleasant anticipation of seeing "McCoy" in big type.

Then she grabbed stationery and wrote a real letter, as follows:

> Dramatic Critic, Worcester ——:
>
> Dear Sir—I read your criticism in the ——, and as this is the opening of vaudeville at Poli's I wish to acquaint you with the facts, if you think headline acts are to be judged by cheaper acts because the latter get more applause (as you noted) and please Worcester audiences.
>
> The fault is with your uneducated public, which prefers the coarse, common and ordinary to the high-class ability. I have been, up to now, catering to the smart classes of New Yorkers, where the admission fee is $2. Here I notice anybody can see me for ten cents. Ten cents from $2 leaves $1.90. That is the difference between New Yorkers and the Worcester public.
>
> Don't get critical with the headliner, for, remember, there is such a thing as pleasing higher intellect. Sincerely, NELLIE M'COY.
>
> P. S.—Understand, my time is valuable, and, were I in any other city, could not afford ten minutes in writing to enlighten a silly owl, but—this is Worcester, and I am here a whole week, and the most interesting thing in town to be done is to go from hotel to theatre. Remember, I am not doing this out of love for Worcester, but for its money. I am being paid a big salary. An artiste, N. M'COY.

Worcesterites are now recalling that famous quotation, something to the effect that Hades is futile and inadequate compared with the wrath of a disappointed damosel.

SULTAN HAS CANCER; FEAR FATAL RESULT

Report Explains Secrecy Maintained About the Illness of Turkish Ruler.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 11.—Sultan Abdul Hamid II. is afflicted with cancer. This is the latest explanation of the illness of the Turkish ruler, which has caused alarm as to his eventual recovery, and accounts for the secrecy which has been maintained in regard to the disease from which the Sultan has been suffering for some time.

Professor Bergmann, the German specialist, who was summoned some time ago to treat the Sultan, has been recalled to Constantinople to examine his patient.

GOVERNOR AT NEWBURYPORT FOR BIG FAIR

Annual Event, Bigger Than Ever, Opens Under Clear Skies.

THOUSANDS SEE PARADE

NEWBURYPORT, Sept. 11.—With perfect Autumn weather, blue skies and a cool breeze blowing over the big fair grounds in this city, the annual Newburyport fair opened to-day. The exhibits are bigger and better than ever before, and this is especially true of the cattle and horse shows, entries being made by fancy breeders all over New England. To-day is Governor's day, and Governor Guild is the guest of honor at the fair this afternoon.

A novel feature of the fair was the spectacular procession of trades, industrial and agricultural exhibits to-day through the streets of the city. The parade was over a mile long, practically the entire population turning out to witness it.

Fine Card of Races.

The track stewards have arranged a fine card of horse races for each afternoon during the life of the fair, which will close Friday. Large purses are offered for the principal events, the stables being filled with fast ones from every State in the East. A big feature that will doubtless make Friday, the closing day, the biggest one of the week is the engagement of the Myopia Hunt Club members, who will give exhibitions of hurdle racing, ladies' and gentlemen's riding and other features unique at an agricultural exhibition.

One of the great attractions of the fair this year is the "Midway," which has all the wonders of the world and tent shows galore.

Retain Old Features.

To-morrow will be specially observed as "Haverhill day," Thursday as "Gloucester day" and Friday as "Horsemen's day."

The fair management has secured a big vaudeville entertainment. Balloon ascensions and all other features dear to the hearts of the old-fashioned "cattle show" visitors have been retained.

The program of racing events arranged is as follows:

Wednesday (Haverhill day)—2:30 class, purse $100; free-for-all, purse $100; named race, purse $100.

Thursday (Gloucester day)—Colt race, four years and under, purse $100; 2:40 class, purse $100; free-for-all, purse $100; special matched road race.

Friday (Horsemen's day)—2:25 class, purse $100; free-for-all, purse $100; 2:35 class, purse $100; peg race, thirty-five bushels of oats.

The officers of the association are: William G. Fisher, president; James K. Adams, vice-president; Charles W. Nelson, general manager; Orlando F. Hatch, stockholders' secretary; George W. Cooper, treasurer; John W. Sargent, secretary.

ELECTRIC ROADS SUED FOR $272,000

WORCESTER, Sept. 11.—Over twenty-seven damage suits have been entered in the Superior Court here against the Worcester Consolidated street railway, aggregating over $65,000. Suits amounting to over $272,000 have been entered against electric roads in the county, the Worcester & Holden electric road coming second with five cases, aggregating $34,000.

JESUIT HEAD GIVES PROGRAM.

ROME, Sept. 11.—Fr. Wernz, the newly-elected general of the Society of Jesus, yesterday delivered his inaugural speech, summarizing the program of the order.

FITCH COMEDY SHOWS EFFECT OF JEALOUSY

"Girl With Green Eyes" at Castle Square Fits Miss Lawton Perfectly.

PLAY IS OF REAL LIFE

Haw Clyde Fitch written his clever comedy-drama, "The Girl with the Green Eyes," especially to present the versatility and exquisite feminity of Thais Lawton, the clever dramatist could scarcely have chosen a more fitting vehicle for the new leading woman of the Castle Square company?

Miss Lawton, as "Jinny" Austin, is essentially the winsome bride, transformed as though by magic into the demon of jealous fears, with all her logically unreasonableness of mind and mood. From the first Miss Lawton wins the sympathy of her audience in all her volatile and wayward moods, in spite of the fac hat throughout the trend of sympathy is ever in the husband's favor.

As the play goes the husband's role is necessarily secondary, but Howell Hansel as the long suffering victim if his wife's needless jelousy—the patient martyr—lifted the part into prominence.

Miss Leonora Bradley and Miss Kate Ryan, former Castle Square favorites, return to the company this week and they were most cordially welcomed. Shelby Hull made much of the part of Geoffrey Tillman, the chronic dyspeptic. Elfrida Lasche was charmingly clever as the pathetically unfortunate Ruth Chester.

"STARLIGHT" A HIT AT KEITH'S THEATRE

There isn't a dull number on the program at Keith's this week. From a spectacular viewpoint nothing to equal Hardnin's electrical ballet, "Starlight," has been seen at that house. "Starlight" comes from Europe, and is literally dazzling—that is, as far as the electrical effects are concerned. The dancing itself is commonplace and the accompanying music is neither tuneful nor dainty.

Three other features of this week's offering stand out conspicuously. In a well-written sketch, called "A Village Lawyer," Will M. Cressy and Blanche Dayne present a breezy picture of New England life, which, farcical at the start, becomes serious and almost tear-compelling at the close. A ventriloquist act by Ed F. Reynard is irresistibly funny. Mr. Reynard rescues a dying art from the fading memories of the past. The kinetograph, which closes the show, is especially interesting to Bostonians this week, inasmuch as the moving pictures reproduce scenes on the River Thames, where the Harvard and Cambridge crews recently met.

"ONE HORSE TOWN" ALL RIGHT THERE

Without any excuse for its existence save a handful of exceptionally pretty girls in smart costumes and a regrettably few catchy musical numbers, "A One Horse Town" opened a week's engagement at the Globe Theatre last evening. The program says that the attraction is a "musical fun show." Possibly it is. Joe Kane is featured as Herman Dingle, a trombonist." Why the "trombonist" one is at a loss to understand.

The chorus made up in general excellence what it lacked in numbers. Perhaps credit for this happy fact is due to Ned Wayburn who staged the piece. Two or three of the musical numbers were worthy of more than passing note, especially "In the Shadows of the Silv'ry Moon," which earned more appreciation from the audience for Mr. Kane and his very attractive young ladies than anything else in the show.

"A One Horse Town" is, in a word, a pocket edition of the popular musical comedies that have always enjoyed a great vogue in Boston. It ought to go good in a one horse town.

RUSSELL BROTHERS MAKE GOOD AS GIRLS

Two Irish chambermaids, the disguises assumed by Michael Nolan and Patrick Nolan, as the Russell Brothers call themselves in the play "The Great Jewel Mystery," and their chase after the thieves furnish the motif for the new play by Mark Swan at the Grand Opera House this week. The two comedians have become famous in vaudeville. Now they are gaining fame in the legitimate, for they are excruciatingly funny, and their piece has real merit. They have a line of work that is strictly their own. As Gladys Murphy, Madam Roveska, Madam Rousseau, Crazy Mary, Marjorie Casey, Lizzy Snitz, Patrisco Dolansky and all the others whom they impersonate in their search for the jewels they lost their own identity and created no end of fun.

LAST WEEK OF ACTS AT AUSTIN & STONE'S

Last week of the Gitano Troupe and the Scandinavian orchestra was begun yester day at Austin & Stone's Museum, and again the brilliantly costumed and skilful musicians attracted crowds. Till's Marionettes, accompanied by songs and comedy, furnished especial amusement for the children. In the theatre the double bill of vaudeville proved popular. The Minstrel Maids appeared in the circle with new features

DEEP-DYED VIL-YUN FOILED BY SLEUTH

Whew! Talk about sensation and excitement! "The King of Detectives," the play at the Bowdoin Square this week, has it in abundance. Deep-eyed villainy, daring adventures by the beautiful heroine, plots to kill her brother, an air ship flight and duel, a court room scene, and, just for a dash of sentiment, the song, "Ain't You Comin' Back to Old New Hampshire, Molly," all these are in "The King of Detectives" for one price. Charlotte Hunt is, of course, the heroine, and a delightfully pretty one she is, too.

A "MONEY'S WORTH" SHOW AT LYCEUM

Hyde's Comedians and the "Blue Ribbon Girls" give a lively and thoroughly entertaining performance at the Lyceum Theatre this week. The whole show is above the average for burlesque troupes, according to the standard that has existed in this city for the past few seasons. The curtain raiser is a minstrel half circle, which is surprisingly snappy. The Gillette Sisters and the Kaufman Brothers on the ends and the ballad singing by Pauline Newton, are the features. Some comic scenes in motion photography open the olio.

"ARMS AND THE MAN" LIKE A DASH OF COLD WATER IN ITS REFRESHING EFFECT ON JADED PLAYGOERS

Arnold Daly Brings a Treat to Tremont Theatre in Shaw Play.

Players Make Story Real by Acting With Sincerity and Vim

Pretty Daughter of James A. Herne Reveals Unexpected Dramatic Ability.

Have you ever, when tired out after, say, a long railroad ride, plunged your hands into a basin of cold water, and then, spluttering and splashing, revelled in its freshness as you soused your head, hair, eyes, neck, etc., and with a long-drawn "Ah!" dried your face and taken a new lease of life?

Great, isn't it?

Well, if you wish to experience the same delicious, invigorating, reviving sensation in a theatrical way—if you wish a genuine dramatic treat—see "Arms and the Man," "a comedy by Bernard Shaw," as the program says, which Arnold Daly put on at the Tremont last evening for the first time.

It is like a dash of cold water. It is refreshing not only because of its clever lines and situations, but because of the really clever acting.

Daly Had to Make Speech.

Rarely does a "cold" Boston audience warm up to a play or a company as did the one last night, and besides laughing until they were tired, they applauded so loudly and energetically that each player came back twice and Mr. Daly had to make a speech in which he, as it seems all actors take delight in doing on such occasions, "slopped over."

The audience readily forgave the fact that Chrystal Herne got into bed with her slippers on, that she was gowned in a ridiculously modern costume for the year 1885, that Mr. Daly made no attempt to disguise his high-pitched voice, and that Sergius's uniform was "band-boxy" new after its long service in the field. These little things can be disregarded, perhaps, when one is being tickled, and "Arms and the Man" certainly is a "tickler."

ARNOLD DALY'S POSE DURING HIS SPEECH BEFORE THE CURTAIN, WHEN HE BEWAILED HIS UNPREPAREDNESS FOR SAYING ANYTHING OF INTEREST.

ZOUNDS!
CURSES!
GADZOOKS!
ODDSBODS!

EDGAR BAUME AS MAJOR SERGIUS SARANOFF, WHOSE BUSINESS IT WAS TO MAKE PROPER ENGLISH SOUND LIKE CURSES.

CHRYSTAL HERNE AS RANIA PETKOFF, EXCITED OVER THE QUESTION OF WHETHER CAPTAIN BLUNTSCHLI IS MARRIED OR NOT.

Each Player Is Sincere.

No one but Arnold Daly and B. Shaw takes B. Shaw seriously, and there is a doubt about B. Shaw. But to properly play a Shaw comedy every actor must take it seriously and must act seriously. Sincerity stood out conspicuously in the performance last night in every character, from Mr Daly's Bluntschli to Miss Margaret Bourne's Louka.

Playgoers owe much to James A. Herne and his talented wife for endowing their daughter with such native ability as she reveals in the character of Raina. Few actresses could have been so sedate, so demure, so cold-blooded as she or have so realized the real comedy of the scene wherein she exclaims, "How did you find me out," or that where she impulsively asks her "chocolate cream soldier" if he really is married. Truly, her work was exceptional.

Miss Bourne's Great "Louka."

Then the Louka of Miss Bourne, whom Bostonians saw earlier in the year in the Empire Theatre stock company. Her saucy hand maiden, with a soul above her station, is a "fat" part, requiring strong, clever handling, an attractive actress and a convincing one. Miss Bourne is all this and more, and the redoubled applause the audience gave when she appeared with the company at the curtain call was a signal mark of appreciation.

One could hardly recognize Isabelle Urquhart in her Bulgarian costume, so different from the good old Casino days. She didn't have much to do, but did it well. So did Dodson Mitchell in his Major Petkoff and Edgar Bourne his Sergius, while John Findlay's Nicola was a gem of a servant.

Of course the chief interest centred in Mr. Daly's "chocolate cream soldier." He was a little disappointing at first—seemed to be too much Daly and too little Shaw—but as he warmed up to the work and the audience warmed to him he became more and more the embodiment of the part. He looked it at all times. All the hidden niceties of such a scene as that at the close of the first act—niceties which only careful, earnest study can bring to mind—were given close attention.

In fact, "Arms and the Man," in its entirety, is a genuine treat. It would pay Mr Daly to give two weeks to it instead of the one announced.

Plays That Continue.

At several of the local playhouses popular attractions are continued this week. It is unusual that such a series of strong plays should be having runs here at the same time.

Boston Theatre

At the Boston Theatre, where "Cape Cod Folks" has created so favorable an impression that every effort possible has been made to have its time extended, the new rural nautical play entered last night on the final week of its engagement. It is not surprising that this drama of New England life, which has for its locale so interesting a place as Cape Cod, and which combines the sentiment of "Shore Acres," the heart interest of "'Way Down East" and the humor of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," should achieve immediate popularity here in New England. Its very simplicity appeals to the audience, supplemented, as it is, by perfect realism.

Park Theatre

There was a splendid audience at the Park Theatre last evening, and the second week of the engagement of "The Lion and the Mouse" opened in the most auspicious fashion. "The Lion and the Mouse" is a most absorbing drama. The play is a contest between two dominating personalities, a trust king and multimillionaire and a pretty young woman. The rich man has never been thwarted in all his life, but here he has to meet with defeat, brought about in one of the most stirring scenes that the Boston stage has ever seen.

Majestic Theatre

Louis Mann and Clara Lipman entered last evening upon the second and last week of their engagement in that delightful comedy "Julie Bonbon." It has been a long time since so diverting an entertainment has been offered the playgoers of Boston. To be sure, the story is not a new one, but the clever situations and the witty dialogue, the artistic work of Mr. Mann, Miss Lipman and a capable company all weld together an evening of unusual pleasure. As the bibulous old Jean Poujol Mr. Mann has the best part he has ever assumed.

Colonial Theatre

With an exceedingly large audience attracted to the Colonial Theatre last evening it was evident that Wright Lorimer was repeating the great personal success which he had made here in previous seasons. It was the opening of the second week of the stay of "The Shepherd King" at this house this season, and the audience was just as large as if it were a new play. It forms a striking picture from Biblical history and takes the playgoer back to one of the most interesting epochs of the world.

Hollis Street Theatre

Boston took a trip to the Far West last evening, and the personally conducted excursion was one of the most interesting that the patrons of the Hollis Street Theatre had known in a long time. The occasion was the opening of the second and last week of the engagement of "The Virginian" in this city, and for nearly three hours the large audience forgot all about Eastern affairs and seemed to be out in the wilds of Wyoming.

"THE LAST WORD" REVIVED AT BIJOU

So many of his patrons who witnessed "The Last Word" during his season at the Globe Theatre have written John Craig asking that it be put on again that this clever comedy was revived by Mr. Craig last evening, and drew a packed house. This comedy is in just the style that suits the players of Mr. Craig's company. There is a buoyancy and sparkle about their work that is refreshing, and Mary Young has a part that fits her, physically and temperamentally, like a glove. Mr. Craig, too, is well cast in the character of Harry Rutherell. Dainty Alice Riker plays the part of Winny with great vivacity, and all the others enter into the spirit of the piece.

NO FLAW IN SHOW BY PARISIAN BELLES

No one could pick a flaw in the superb entertainment which the Parisian Belles gave at the Columbia yesterday. Everything was kept going at a merry clip. A jollier pair of heavyweight comedians could not be found in the burlesque field than Sheppard Camp and Al Rice, and in the burletta "A Pair of Peaches" they create more fun than an old-fashioned circus. The music is a decided improvement over anything yet heard. Miss Mildred Glover had the bulk of the singing to do and was a big favorite.

RUNAWAY GIRLS AT PALACE THEATRE

Clark's Runaway Girls company began a week's engagement at the Palace Theatre yesterday. Its entertainment has all the charm of novelty. The company presents an uproariously funny burlesque entitled "The Sultan's Dilemma," which abounds in bright dialogue, laughable situations and charming musical numbers. It is magnificently staged.

ONE MORE WEEK OF NORUMBEGA PARK

There is but one more week of the vaudeville programmes in the covered open air theatre at Norumbega Park this season. Heading the list are Adair and Dahn, novelty tight wire artists, with some sensational barrel jumping. W. E. Whittle, the ventriloquist, a novelty dancing act by Brown and Wright; comedy instrumentality by Fields and Hanson; and Rouih and Rudd, the famous European eccentriques "from the Old World," and the motion pictures complete the excellent bill.

LORIMER POSTPONES HIS IBSEN MATINEE

Owing to an accident to Mr. Lorimer's scenery for Ibsen's "A Wild Duck," which the actor was to have presented at the Colonial Theatre, Thursday afternoon, September 13, the first production of the play has been postponed until Thursday, September 20. It is announced that seats already purchased will be exchanged for seats for Thursday, September 20.

REAL THING IN VAUDEVILLE IS ORPHEUM SHOW

Manager Wisely Judges Popular Tastes and Gives Bill of Real Merit.

HOPE BOOTH BIG SUCCESS

At last a vaudeville theatre manager in Boston has realized that there is something of more interest to an audience than a couple of powdered, grotesquely attired acrobats lumbering about over a table, or a half-jagged impersonator (?) who comes out and tells old jokes, and that an afternoon's bill should contain something more than a group of black-face singers, a "balancing act" and an exaggerated Dutch comedian.

"Even better than last week" is the verdict of those who were at the Orpheum yesterday, for the two features of last week's bill—Ventriloquist Arthur Prince, who throws his voice even while he smokes and drinks, and Fred Karno's London company—are held over, and there is a long list of new features, "for the first time in Boston."

The new features this week are Hope Booth and her company in a delightful one-act play, entitled "The Little Blond Lady;" the Rose De Haven Septette, and Ida Rene, the English artist, in her inimitable performance as a speaker of songs. All the other acts, Senegal, foot juggler and equilibrist; Germinal, peasant baritone from France; Howard and North, "those were the happy days," and Mlle. De Serrana's animals, were well received.

HOWARD ATHENAEUM SHOW IS ROLLICKING

It is a rich, rollicking show at the Old Howard this week. There are sixteen strong features. The famous Bessie Valdare troup of bicycle performers are the headliners and Burke and Dempsey in a clever comedy are strong in favor. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Thorn, Geo. W. Watson and others are seen to advantage in "An Up-Town Flat," and the Three Juggling Bannbus are wonders. Milt Wood, the dancer; Fitzgerald and Trainer, in song and dance; Zinnell and Boutelle in an operatic comedy; The Edgartons, in an aerial skit; Lillian Taylor; the Bath Brothers and Walton in acrobatic turn; Butler Haviland, the eccentric comedian; Freeman and Watson; Leonard and Bastedo; William La Belle, the hoop roller; Al G. and Mazie Belford, change artists; Carrie Scott, exponent of physical culture, and the Howardscope round out the big bill.

NO DICTATION TO EMPLOYES, SAYS POTTS

Head of Wage Earners' Clubs Scores Employers Who Seek to Control Workmen's Votes.

CALLS EFFORT TYRANNY

To the Editor of the BOSTON AMERICAN:

I was somewhat surprised on reading the article in your paper, Sunday, September 9, containing the confidential letter sent out by Harrison Loring, Jr., asking for funds to elect men to office who are opposed to organized labor. Does he think that the voters of this country can all be bought like sheep, or does he measure the standard of the working people with his own measure? We admit in some cases that the man with barrels of money at his back can buy a certain number of votes either directly or indirectly, but how long will this last? The working people have at last realized that to have a government by the people and for the people the officers they elect must be fearless, honest and upright, and all employers of the same calibre of H. Loring, Jr., are neither, because they will not allow the working people to have the same right of freedom that they themselves wish to enjoy.

A few words regarding his appeal. First, it emanates from D. M. Parry, the man who promised his employes better conditions providing they did not join any labor organization. They complied with this request, and in two years he (D. M. Parry) cut them down fifty cents a day, and, of course, they had to strike. Strange, to see non-union men striking because their angelic boss, instead of living up to his word, violated it flagrantly. Then, what good is the word of D. M. Parry? The great moral effect—what degree of morality has the gentleman sending out the circular? He would, if it were possible, intimidate and coerce voters to do as he says. The political morality of such employers as he is such that they are not yet to be classed as American citizens.

Why have we not the same privilege as Joseph Cannon, Secretary Taft, H. C. Lodge, and other influential gentlemen who are in the employ of the government to send a few of our wage workers into any district to show to the people the damnable tactics that are used by these so-called Parryites to defeat fair and just propositions? The corporate interests are being looked after—why not the working men's interests?

He states that this is not a question of politics. If not, what is it? He asks for one dollar per head for every employe in their service. If this was attempted in some of the foreign countries this man would be put behind bars. We are not attempting outside dictation, as we are as much on the inside as you are. The work we have done in Maine is clean and honest; the opposition has not told the truth and furthermore could not if they tried.

In conclusion, let me say that organized labor will assist any candidate for office who is at all times for the people and against the corporations controlling everything in sight. Our motto is: "Grafters Beware Assist Our Friends! Defeat Our Enemies!" And we intend to deliver the goods when the time is ripe.

JOHN E. POTTS,
President, Boston Central Wage Earners' Club.

LAST WEEK IS BIGGEST OF ALL AT WONDERLAND

Despite the heavy fog that spread over land and sea and the generally disagreeable weather that prevailed yesterday afternoon and last evening, there was a large crowd of visitors at the carnival festivities in Wonderland. The program was carried out as arranged, and it was very successful.

The big feature of the week is the "Electric Steam Scintillator," and, judging from last evening's exhibition, this attraction will prove to be one of the greatest drawing cards that Wonderland has ever had. The effects produced are very beautiful. In the center of the arena has been set up a fifty-horsepower engine, which furnishes the great clouds of steam necessary for the spectacle.

A large platform erected over the base of the chutes supports ten powerful searchlights. With great volumes of white steam rising fifty feet in the air, the electricians throw multi-colored lights upon the clouds as they roll upward. All of the beauties of an Oriental sunset, the rise of the sun at the North pole, a storm at sea, the aurora borealis, a wind storm and other effects were given last night, and each was greeted with enthusiastic applause. King Evereus and his suite were present at the fete last evening. The other features of the carnival were all that were promised, and Wonderland patrons obtained a glimpse of Fairyland that was well worth the visit.

In the arena, McPhee and Hill, horizontal bar performers, gave a clever exhibition, and the features of last week were held over. The Salem Cadet band gave frequent concerts, and in the afternoon and evening Master Coakley sang with the band.

Every attraction on the grounds won its share of popular favor the second and last week of the carnival, and the closing week of the season at Wonderland began under most auspices circumstances.

Several thousand readers of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN enjoyed themselves as guests of this newspaper yesterday, and thousands more will to-day. Besides being admitted to Wonderland without cost, the BOSTON AMERICAN guests are also entitled to one ride down the Chutes or through Hell Gate and a visit to The Fatal Wedding.

The carnival program will continue through the week, and if the weather man is kind, next Sunday, which will mark the closing of Wonderland, will be the biggest in the history of the enterprise, in point of attractions offered.

APPROVE CONVENTION INDEPENDENCE LEAGUE

ENTHUSIASTIC LETTERS FROM ALL OVER STATE—BRANCHES MUST HASTEN.

Words of approval of the action of the State committee of the Independence League of Massachusetts in calling a State convention were spoken by independent citizens all over the State, yesterday. At the headquarters of the League, in the Winthrop building, lettres were received from members of many of the leagues in cities and towns, complimenting the State committeemen upon their decision to summon delegates from the branches to meet in Faneuil Hall, a week from next Saturday afternoon, to "take such action as shall assure the nomination of candidates pledged to the principles of the League, whose campaign shall be conducted by friends and not by enemies."

The significance of the last clause in the above sentence has been generally commented upon. Hon. John O'Hearne, former Mayor of Taunton, in conversation with a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter seemed to sum up the usual comment when he said: "This indicates that the Independence League does not intend to allow good candidates to be put up and slaughtered in the house of their own parties. The present Democratic State machine, for instance, would have defeated John B. Moran for the party nomination if it could. Finding that the members of the party will have none of its dictation, and that in the face of the overwhelming Moran sentiment they cannot induce anyone to enter the convention to contest the nomination with him, they are busily engaged in saying and doing everything they can to insure his defeat at the polls and the victory of his opponent.

Real Friends For Support.

It is easy to see what chance he would have if his campaign were left in the hands of such leaders. Nor is this true alone of the Democratic machine. You can imagine how much support Henry Cabot Lodge would give a man of the Independent Moran stamp if the Republican voters should unite to nominate him."

"A candidate pledged to the principles of the League,—which means to the best interests of all the people of the State,—will be before the voters this year," said President William N. Osgood of the State League to-day with much positiveness, "and he will be in the hands of real friends, who desire his election and will accomplish it if it can be fairly brought about."

Yesterday's mail brought letters from many cities and towns where leagues are in process of formation but whose members have not met for organization, asking how long they could have to complete the work and elect officers and yet be eligible to send delegates to the State convention. To each of these Secretary Davis replied that the State committee would not apportion what share of the Senatorial district representation each league should have until Saturday, and all leagues which have completed their organization before that time will be entitled to seats on the convention floor on the twenty-second.

Will Be Representative.

The clerks and stenographers at the State headquarters were busy all day yesterday sending out the calls for the State convention and letters to officers asking them to at once call meetings of the leagues, to be held next Monday and the following Thursday nights. Leagues are either formed or in process of formation in every Senatorial district in the State at the present moment, so the State committee feels certain that the convention will be a highly representative body.

Whether or not the branch leagues will instruct their delegates as to their action at the convention, is a matter each one will settle for itself. It apepars from present reports, however, that a large number of the delegates are likely to be instructed, thus insuring a certain representation of the sentiments of the league members.

LABOR NEWS

Probably the greatest effort ever made to get the engineers in this city thoroughly organized will be made to-morrow night at Faneuil Hall under the auspices of Boston Stationary Engineers' Union No. 16. Among the speakers will be President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, Mayor Fitzgerald, President M. T. Joyce and Secretary Henry Abrahams of the Central Labor Union, International President Martin P. Higgins of the Printing Pressmen's Unioin, Ex-Chief State Inspector of Boilers Thomas Hawley and Ex-Senator William J. Donovan of East Boston, who is a licensed engineer and who was a member of the committee on mercantile affairs which reported the original engineers' license bill.

Letters will be read from Governor Guild and John Mitchell of the United Mine Workers. President W. R. F. Whalen and Vice-President Arthur E. Morse will preside. Among the invited guests are the boiler inspectors of the Massachusetts district police, Past International President P. H. Hagan of the N. A. S. E., President A. J. Tighe of Local No. 47, N. A. S. E., William Beck of Local No. [illegible], and James E. Coyne.

Coal Hoisting Engineers' Union No. 74 will march in a body from its headquarters at No. 994 Washington street. All the engineers in the city who have not received circulars are cordially invited to be present, particularly members of the N. A. S. E. and the American Order of Steam Engineers. Eighty-five applications for membership have been received as a result of the union's educational campaign.

CHARLESTOWN FORMS CLUB.

The Charlestown Wage Earners' Club organized permanently last night with 200 members, and the election of the following officers:

President, John J. Buckley; first vice-president, W. C. Rich; second vice-president, Michael Scannell; treasurer, F. O. Miskelly; recording secretary, James Lincoln; corresponding secretary, James Horrigan; district organizer, John J. Buckley; delegates to Central Wage Earners' Club, Cornelius Crowley, John J. Buckley and Michael Sennell.

Among the speakers were D. Driscoll, Thomas M. Nolan, Charles G. Wilkins, Joseph B. Gill, Edward Doherty and Joseph Dolf. Permanent headquarters were established at Monument Hall where meeting will be held weekly.

STRIKE EXPENSES PAID.

Sheet Metal Workers' Union No. 17 received a check from the international union last night to reimburse it for expenses incurred in the strike which was inaugurated August 1 for a minimum wage of $3.60 a day. It was reported that every man is at work. In order to have strikers return from New York, some firms, it was asserted, have been obliged to pay them more than $3.60, as the rate in New York is $4.50 a day. Twenty-two men have returned from New York. It was voted to affiliate with the People's Legal Security Company. Business Agent John F. Kennedy was granted a two weeks' vacation.

CAMBRIDGE WAGE EARNERS.

Cambridge Wage Earners' Club meets at No. 622 Massachusetts avenue to-night. All wage earners are invited to attend. The special naturalization committee will submit a report. The committee consists of President Andrew W. Morrison, Secretary Clarence K. Akerstrom, Ira F. Bowlby, Felix A. Guyette and Harry W. Joel. President Morrison will announce the appointment of a special committee to look up the records of the senatorial and representative candidates in the various Cambridge districts. Albion M. Richards, chairman of a special committee on mass meeting to protest against the dilatory action of the City Council electric lighting committee of the Cambridge League of Municipal Ownership associations and president of the newly installed Independence League of Cambridge, will address the club on subjects of mutual interest to the three organizations.

LABOR NOTES.

Cambridge Rubber Workers' Union will hold a special meeting at C. L. U. headquarters Friday evening. The meeting was called to discuss certain trade matters and also to consider the advisability of revising their present constitution.

Ex-President A. W. Morrison of Carpenters' Unioin No. 441 will start next Saturday for Niagara Falls, N. Y., where he will represent his union as delegate to the convention of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America.

A resolution was adopted by the Cambridge C. L. U. condemning the action of non-unionmen in the city of Cambridge who are doing their own bill posting, spreading flyers, cards, etc., instead of employing union labor.

The Label Committee of Cigarmakers' Union No. 97 is to distribute 10,000 small cigar signs advertising the blue label.

The Waitt & Bond team has won the baseball championship of the Cigar Workers' League by defeating the Poet team, 14 to 10, on Saturday.

If the second game in the series between the Bostons and the New Yorks at the South End grounds to-day is as tame an affair as the first, then the fans who like good, live ball games will steer clear of the Walpole street grounds.

Because they have lost all chances of winning the pennant this season, the Giants have simply fell into a rut of indifferent playing, which they will probably continue for the remainder of the season unless some one gets after them good and hot.

The Giants are not the terrible aggregation they were earlier in the season. They are full-fledged members of the "down and out" club. They have lost all the life they used to have on the bases, and really don't care whether school keeps or not.

In the game yesterday, Si Seymour laid down deliberately on the grass during the progress of the game for a rest. Bresnhan hit a ball to Brain, and did not even start to first. McGraw did not say a word against Roger for this breach of good baseball playing. These and other things tend to show that the Giants are down and out.

In to-day's game between the "Lemons" and the Not-Yet-But-May Be-Next-Season-Club, Pfeffer will probably twirl for the Bostons and either Dummy Taylor or Christy Mathewson for the visitors.

ROOSEVELT CUP IS WON BY THE VIM

Hardly discernable a boat's length away, the American boat Vim crossed the finish line a winner yesterday in the fifth and deciding race in the German-American series for the Roosevelt Cup. The Auk, also flying the Stars and Stripes, was second, and the German, Wannsee, third. During the finishing leg the three boats had been steering rather wildly from the finish line, misguided in the fog by the blasts of the excursion boat whistles. The leg started out to be a run, but the wind had died away and the first one crossed close hauled. Adams sent his boat across with eased sheets, and the German followed with spinnaker set.

America has again showed by international competition that she is supreme in yacht racing. During the past week four of the five races have gone to American boats. The Vim gets the challenge cup for which the German visitors have contested so nobly.

After the race it was announced that President Roosevelt would receive the helmsmen and owners of the yachts, and also the regatta committee, on Friday at Oyster Bay.

WALCOTT TO MEET RHODES

Joe Walcott wants another crack at Gans, and in order to get it has taken on Billy Rhodes of Kansas in a twenty-round go for the 23d. The boys are to meet before the Leavenworth Eagles of Leavenworth, Kan.

Rhodes is a fast and clever fighter, and should Walcott defeat him he may be offered a match with his conqueror. The weight will be 147 pounds.

NEARY WANTS LONG FIGHTS

MIWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 11.—Charlie Neary, local lightweight, who has defeated Battling Nelson, announces that he will not take part in any short-round bouts the coming season unless he fails to get some long ones. He prefers fifteen to twenty-round bouts. He is going after Nelson, Kid Herman, Benny Yanger and Jimmy Britt, and will meet any one of them at any time and split the purse any way they want, even to winner taking all. Neary says if he can beat Nelson and one other he will then go after Gans for the lightweight championship.

KELLY FINISHES WORK AT HIGHLAND LAKE TO MEET BURKE

KID HERMAN AFTER MATCH WITH GANS

GOLDFIELD, Nev., Sept. 11.—Kid Herman's claim to a match with Joe Gans, aided by Jimmy Britt's half-hearted refusal to meet the colored lad in the ring at the next big battle in Goldfield, has brightened considerably, and it is very likely that Nate Lewis and Tex Rickard, promoters of the Goldfield Athletic Club, will come to terms and match the men.

Britt expressed his willingness to meet Gans, but there is a something in the ring of his voice that tells Goldfield sportsmen that he is not altogether anxious. He intimates that if he should fight the colored man he would rather meet him in Frisco.

He further states that he has business to look after at present, and that this will keep him busy. Whether he fears Gans after his beating at the hands of Terry McGovern or not is a mystery to fans here, but there is something back of his actions.

However, while he is undecided as to whether he will meet Gans or not, Herman is straining every muscle to get the colored fighter to consent.

Herman is confident he can beat Gans, and is willing to wager some real money on his chances. The Kid is small and very clever, although he has not the greatest strength back of his wallops.

He defeated the clever Eddie Hanlon, and if present reports are true should have won from Abe Attell, the cleverest and shiftiest man in the ring to-day. Regardless as to who the winner would be this pair would furnish some lively sport, principally because of their cleverness.

NEW RULES FINE FOR THE DOCTORS

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Sept. 11.—There was quite a noted gathering of football celebrities on Ferry Field yesterday afternoon. It consisted of "Hurry Up" Yost, "Dan" McGugin, "King" Cole, "Willie" Heston, "Shorty" Longman, Keene Fitzpatrick, "Doc" May, the physical examiner at the Waterman gymnasium; Manager Baird, Whitmore, the Ypsilanti halfback, and enough others to make up an eleven to interpret the new rules in living pictures. They were all in the lineup.

The forward pass was tried most of the time, and this revolutionary rule, it was shown, makes the game more open and more complicated.

The liability of injuries is increased instead of lessened, according to Dr. May. "The new rule makes open play, but a man in running forward to get a pass, obliged to look back over his shoulder, is unable to see what is ahead of him and protect himself. He can be easily hurt in a hard tackle."

"Gee whiz!" said Willie Heston, after sizing up the new plays, "a wreck in every play. I'll tell you what you'll have to do Keene. You will have to train a squad on how to carry stretchers."

"I don't know just how the new rules will work out," said Coach Yost, "but I think as the season advances there will be strong defence worked up around the man receiving the forward pass. Scoring is going to be a matter of great luck."

Neither "King" Cole nor Dan McGugin appeared to be great admirers of the new rules, but were trying to make the best of them, and the conference started a foundation for each coach to work upon. It was rather a mutual benefit association meeting, and each had valuable suggestion to offer the others.

$5,000 OFFERED FOR FIGHT.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 11.—George Siler, who with his wife has arrived from Goldfield, says the town of Manhattan, Nev., has offered $5,000 for a fight between Jimmy Gardner and Willie Fitzgerald, the battle to be to a finish. The Goldfield A. C. has permanently engaged Siler to referee its combats.

WILL BACK FITZ AGAINST DANE

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Sept. 11.—Jimmy Coffroth is far from thinking Nelson is impervious to a knockout punch and declares he is willing to bet $2,500 that Willie Fitzgerald, the Brooklyn lightweight, can defeat Nelson.

"It would be hard to pick a lightweight who would have a better chance to knock out Nelson than this same boy Fitzgerald. He has a punch that would do for Nelson. I did not think so three or four days before the fight, but the mashing the Dane got from Gans will not do him any good. Before that fight Nelson thought no man could hurt him with a punch. Gans demonstrated the weakness of Nelson's position, and the Dane at last has realized he can be hurt."

Kelly and Burke Features of a

GOOD CARD AT CHELSEA

Where two fast, heavy-hitting lads who are powerfully built come together there is always certain to ensue a rattling good contest. This has been proven many times in this vicinity and should be duplicated to-night when Hugo Kelly of Chicago, champion middleweight of America, meets Sailor Burke of New York, one of the hardest hitters that ever donned a glove, at the Lincoln Club, Chelsea.

Burke arrived in town yesterday morning. He is a powerful built lad, square shouldered and tall, with an eye as bright as a gold dollar just coined in the mint.

Burke expressed himself as very confident of the outcome. "It will be no tapping affair, I promise you," he said to Miah Murray, "for I am confident I will knock him out inside of ten rounds. I know I am the strongest and the hardest hitter, and I'll be after him like an Indian after a scalp from the moment the gong rings."

The well-known cleverness of Kelly, his speed and agility and ring generalship are apt to be tested thoroughly before the contest to-night ends. Giving him all credit for his wonderful victories over Philadelphia Jack O'Brien and "Twin" Sullivan, still he is facing a man to-night who has never been defeated, and one who tears at an opponent from the start of the bout until victory perches on his efforts. Will Burke succeed to-night? Only the contest itself can tell that tale, but it promises to be one of the fastest, fiercest contests ever decided in Chelsea.

In the opening bout of six rounds Jim Lloyd, the English lad, will make his American debut in the arena against Denny Ryan, of Cambridge.

In the semi-final of eight rounds Billy Boyle, of Ireland, and Bob Smith, of Lowell, will do the honors.

Maffit Flaherty will referee the contests, which will start at 8 p. m. promptly.

WIND SHIELDS MAR DAN PATCH'S WORK

BY EDWARD E. COGSWELL.

There is no gainsaying that Dan Patch is a most wonderful pacer. His innumerable fast miles against the watch over all kinds of tracks illustrate his greatness.

Certain, too, that his owner is not making friends among the Eastern public by persisting in going record-breaking attempts with him back of a wind shield, and with another pacemaker running along on the outside of the stallion, a half-length in the lead.

Under these conditions, at St. Paul, Dan Patch paced a mile in 1:55. In no way will it be counted a record—merely an exhibition or vaudeville feat—as the rule was passed last Winter by the A. T. R. A. that in the future no record could be made by a performer going behind a dirt or wind shield.

All Behind Canvass.

Horsemen well remember how last Fall it was determined after Dan Patch had gained a record back of the piece of canvass of 1:55¼ that he then secured the world's record in the open. He made several trials at the two weeks' Lexington, Ky., meeting, and failure to beat 1:59¼ was notable. Then he was shipped to the forsaken Memphis, Tenn., track in November to achieve the mark he was after.

After a couple of losing attempts, before a mere handful of spectators, he did finally succeed in turning the course in 1:58¼. To many this move in getting the record was far from satisfactory, and his owner was criticised freely in the daily papers.

When it was learned that Dan Patch was in training for new records this season it was generally thought under the late ruling for records he would be sent without the wind shield, but the idea has proved a fallacy.

It has been noted by the owner of the stallion that records made with the assistance of the windshield are designated in the "Year Book" by a series of stars after the horse's name and time. By the sign of a "fish," a turf writer described it.

Public Was Fooled.

However that may be, the owner of Dan Patch has never in all of his advertisements of Dan Patch and record been fair enough to have placed the series of stars to show the general public the method in which he gained the distinction of having paced a mile in 1:55¼. One could have looked in vain in the turf papers through the Spring months for the label.

With all windshield records tabooed by the authorities, it does seem that in his record attempts Dan Patch ought to be given the privilege of demonstrating just how really good a pacer he is under the lawful conditions of going in the open, and not pump him directly in the rear of a windshield similar to a bicycle rider following a motorcycle. The public demand that the true speed of the pacer be shown in its correct light.

Notes of the Harness Horses

A distinct addition to the membership of the Boston Gentlemen's Driving Club is Henry M. Whitney. He will start in the matinees the trotting mare Zambia (2:14¼), which in the Spring series of the Metropolitan Driving Club won the championship cup for trotters.

* * *

From all accounts, everybody and their cousins will go from Dorchester to the intercity matinee of the Dorchester and Lynn Driving Clubs at Rockdale Park, Peabody, next Saturday afternoon. With nineteen races scheduled, the sport will start early and be rushed along to complete the program before darkness interferes.

* * *

Lou McDonald has shipped several of his horses to the Syracuse meeting this week, including the $4,000 Futurity candidate, Codero, who is now reported as having fully recovered from the curb that for a few weeks put him on the shelf. From his showing early in the season, he is certain to be a factor in the big Futurity stakes to be decided at Cincinnati and Lexington.

* * *

James Y. Gatcomb is thinking seriously of wintering in California. He will take along Audubon Boy (1:59¼), Phalla (2:07¾) and Grace Bond (2:09¼).

* * *

Warren F. Daniel of Franklin Falls, N. H., keeps alive his interest in the trotting sport, though he is nearly eighty years of age. He attended the Readville and Hartford Grand Circuit meetings, and declared his purpose of breeding his trotting mare, Fanny Rice (2:14¾) to the stallion Baron Wilkes (2:18).

MANAGER FINED $100.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 11.—President Taylor of the Eastern League announced yesterday that he had fined Manager Stallings of the Buffalo baseball team, who "struck and kicked" Umpire Conahan, who umpired Saturday's game here with the Toronto club, $100 and suspended him for ten days.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—It will probably be up to Cy Young and Chesbro to do the box work this afternoon for the second game of the new series. The Pilgrim visitors are especially anxious to repeat their trick of yesterday when they walked off with the game, 4 to 1, with George Winter in the box. A few earned runs wouldn't hurt either side as far as results go for no scores would have been made at all in the last game had both teams played perfect ball. However, Boston doesn't look to be very particular these days and a game won even at the cost of a few lives is a cheap victory.

There was no getting past Winter. Godwin was responsible for the grave error of letting in a run by throwing high and allowing Chase to do the circuit. At other times the third baseman was a staunch corner.

New York was very lax in the fielding department. Chase, Yeager and Laporte made some rank errors and Conroy used poor judgment in dealing with some of the balls that came his way. Hoey took the heart of the only batsmen on the team by pulling a sure two or three bagger off the top of the fence.

Nelson Gets Busy With His Pen and Declares

GANS FAKED FOUL BLOW

RENO, Nevada, Sept. 11.—Battling Nelson to-day, in an exclusive story for the BOSTON AMERICAN, outlines his future plans. Nelson is here for a few days to rebuild himself and get into shape for another battle.

BY BATTLING NELSON.

The story that I have retired from the ring is false. It is my intention to quit, but not until I have proved to the world that Joe Gans is not my master.

As far as the referee's decision is concerned he defeated me, but the glory that follows defeat is not his here.

He took advantage of Siler's age and poor sight, and when I got him in the wind he fell to the floor and cried foul.

It was the boldest piece of work that has been pulled off in the ring, but the work will net him nothing.

Ready to Fight Again.

I will be ready to meet him again within a month, this time to batter him into unconsciousness in less than fifteen rounds.

To make the fight worth while I will post $20,000 with any California newspaper, the same to go as a side bet. I have informed the Goldfield Athletic Club of my plans as well as the fight clubs throughout California, and I am certain we will be rematched.

I will remain here a short time while taking baths at Moana Springs, then go to California, where I will start training. I will get myself in such condition that it will take me but a short time to beat down the colored lad, and once down he will never rise again until the fatal ten have been counted over his apparently lifeless body.

Will Use Cleverness.

Instead of forcing the fighting and mixing it with him as I did, I will fight him cleverly, his own game, and defeat him. All through the fight he was playing to get in close as I uppercutted, hoping that I would foul him.

I do not doubt that I hit him low several times, but it was not my work. As I came in with a right or left uppercut to the wind he would step in as close as he could, and I had all I could do to prevent getting him in the groin.

Several times I had to stop blows that had he not walked into them would have put him into dreamland for good. I knew his body was his weak spot, and I played for that, but he seemed to be a little too fast for me, for as soon as he saw I directed the blow for the wind he stepped in, hoping it would be low.

Never Complains to Referee.

He never complained to the referee during the fight about my hitting low. He did not dare to, for he feared Siler would notice that he was at fault. He did not care to attract Siler's attention to it at all. He waited long for his opportunity, and when it came he took advantage and got away with it.

Gans is such a past master at the game that he knows just where the blows are going to land, and his continual practice at dirty work enabled him to get in the way of my blows for the body that it appeared as though I was deliberately fouling him.

He knows my style of fighting, and he knew that I would come at him with my head down, the same as I did with Britt.

He saw a chance where through his cleverness and ring experience he could get in on me to make it appear as though I was butting in. He cared nothing about being injured. He wanted to win and win on a foul, and he accomplished his purpose.

Says Gans Is to Blame.

It is hard to make the general public believe this, but those who have had dealings with Gans know his tactics and how he engineers his foul work, and it is these people that I trust to bear out my story.

So clever is Gans at faking that the shrewdest ring generals are deceived. Did not George Siler personally state that when he refereed the Gans-McGovern fight he did not know that it was a "frame up"? He was younger then and his sight and judgment was better than it is now. He watched the fight closely and watched every move. He was around sporting resorts and came in contact with the wisest, yet he declares he knew nothing of a fake.

When George says he knew nothing about a fake fight at that time I believe he was speaking the truth. He was trapped by the colored boy then, and it is not likely that he could have been trapped now, when his sight is weaker and age has worn him down.

I have been censured and torn apart by every one, even my best friends. They have criticised my manager and every one who has had any connection with this fight, but this does not worry me. I will get another chance and will prove that my story is true and that Gans was the instigator of the dirty work which has fallen to me.

It's a long lane that hasn't a turn. The best evidence in the world that Joe is afraid of me and of all who meet him is that he is hurrying away from these parts seeking seclusion.

UNGLAUB WILL REMAIN WITH OUTLAWS

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Sept. 11.—Bob Unglaub has set at rest all doubts as to where he will play next season by affixing his signature to a Williamsport contract for 1907. He will draw a salary of $4,500 a year as long as he cares to play here. President Herrmann of the Cincinnati National League Club offered Bob $4,500, and the directors of the local club promptly met Herrmann's offer. Then Herrmann sent his representative, Mr. Hellbourne, here and offered Unglaub $5,000 a year on a two-years' contract. In the meantime Unglaub had signed a Williamsport contract, which he refused to break.

Harry Gleason has also signed, and with the signing of Wolverton and Charles the entire Williamsport infield will be retained for next season. Joe Delehanty will also remain.

Ted Sullivan was here this forenoon, and before leaving gave out that he had signed Catcher Charles Street for the Chicago Americans.

SHARKEY WILL MEET JEFFRIES

But Only for $50,000 Purse

Tom Sharkey is willing to re-enter the ring with Jim Jeffries, if the Goldfield Club will hang up a purse, say, of the paltry sum of $50,000. Of course, this amount is of no consequence to Tom, as he is well supplied with the wherewithal, but he would like to fight for the sport of it.

If Jeffries will not agree to meet him, Tom will take on any other good man. But the purse must be $50,000. Sharkey would like to have three months to get into condition.

$1,000 A WEEK FOR JOE GANS

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 11.—Joe Gans and wife and his brother-in-law, Bob Turner, who are here, will rest a week before leaving for the East, where Gans will play ten weeks at $1,000 a week. Gans's right hand is still badly swollen. Gans says he will give Britt the next chance, but will arrange terms later.

WINTON CAR FOR 1907 A MORE REFINED MODEL

BY J. C. KERRISON.

Mr. H. Weston of Jacksonville, Fla., has been spending the last week or so touring around New England, with headquarters in Boston. His tour started in Chicago, he driving his Stoddard-Dayton from the West to this city. During the past week he toured to the majority of famous resorts in Massachusetts, and expects to make a dash to Bretton Woods before returning over the road to Chicago.

* * *

Dr. Henry A. Baker and his son, Warren Baker, have returned from a two weeks' trip through Massachusetts and Vermont in their four-cylinder Ford runabout. During their trip they covered 1,200 miles, and that, too, without a single mishap. The hardest hill encountered during the run was that between Newport and Claremont, N. H., and this was negotiated on the high and without any trouble.

The Park Square Automobile Company has secured the Stoddard-Dayton agency for the ensuing year. This set at rest the much-mooted question, and if rumor can be believed caused no less than fifteen persons to become disappointed. The greatest of interest has for a month or more centred in the selection of the Boston agent for that car. The premier honors fell to Mr. Whitney of Park square, who expects to receive his first demonstration car in about three weeks.

Charles Smith, superintendent of the Winton agencies, returned to Boston yesterday after having spent something like two weeks at the Winton factory in Cleveland. In talking about the 1907 product Mr. Smith said:

Our Type XIV., thirty-horsepower, which is the successor to the Model K, with many refinements, is a very neat and attractive little car, seating three in the tonneau and the usual two in the front seats. The car sets considerably lower than the K and presents a very rakish appearance. In the Type XIV. the direct drive will be used as in the past, and the individual clutch system and the Winton type of valves and the air control will be continued. The engine is a great deal neater than in the Model K, and taking the car as a whole, is much faster and stronger than its predecessor.

The Model M has a forty-horsepower engine, seating three in the tonneau, with two revolving chairs for extra passengers and the usual two in the front of the car. The four-speed forward selective type of transmission is used, with the one reverse gear, and mechanical valves are used throughout and the direct drive used is on the third speed.

The wheel base is 110 inches and the car is about the same height as the Type XIV. The Winton spring suspension is used, giving the car fine riding qualities, and the car is finished with the usual fine upholstering and painting as heretofore used. The price of both types will include the full equipment of horn, lamps, and tools. The multiple disc clutch used has fifty high carbon steel friction discs and will run in a continual bath of oil. The fourth speed is simply used for very fast work, and the regular running speed will be on the third gear, which is direct.

LEARN HOW TO KEEP YOUR TEMPER IF YOU WANT TO HAVE FRIENDS

A Good Nature Is What Wins You Admirers

By Beatrice Fairfax

IT is no credit to you to be good tempered and patient when everything is going your way. Any one can be smiling and pleasant when she has nothing to cross her.

But to be patient and good tempered in time of adversity is quite another thing. Then it is that a person's real nature comes out.

Good temper is an exceedingly lovable quality.

The one who possesses it is never at a disadvantage. She can always bring calm, sensible judgment to bear on any matter, because her serene and equable temper prevents her from working herself into a state where calm judgment is impossible. I have heard girls say, "The last compliment you can pay a girl is to call her 'good natured.'"

The girls make a great mistake in supposing good nature a commonplace or unattractive quality.

Perhaps they feel that to be called good natured implies that you are rather more or less the dupe of every one's whims and have no backbone of your own.

It does not, however, imply anything of the kind.

It means that you are willing to make the best of things, willing to do your neighbor a kindness and ready to take life happily and cheerfully.

Patience is absolutely necessary if you wish to succeed. Nothing can be accomplished through impatience and ill-temper.

When everything goes wrong and you feel so irritable that you can hardly content yourself, just try holding your tongue for five minutes. If you can keep the hasty, angry reply back for that length of time, you can usually keep it back altogether. A remark flung out through impatience can sometimes cause a very real heartache.

Patience and self-control are very much the same thing.

A grievance that seems very bad at night will frequently melt away with the morning sun.

Good health, as a rule, brings good temper. It is very hard for the nervous, irritable invalid to control herself.

The healthy person should remember this and exercise patience and forbearance with her unfortunate sister or brother.

When they fume and fret, it is because their nerves are all on edge, half the time they know how unreasonable and irritable they are, but they cannot help it.

The next time you hear a girl spoken of as good natured you may envy instead of commiserating her, for it is one of the highest compliments that can be paid to any one.

If you are patient and good natured, you will never lack for friends or admirers.

TELL HER JUST WHAT YOU THINK OF HER!

Handy Things for Housewives to Know

TO clean linoleum, wash first with a little warm water, and polish by applying milk.

When cleaning paint, do not use hot water, as this destroys the varnish, and will cause the paint to wear off. The water used should be just lukewarm.

A few trays of charcoal set on the floor and shelves of a damp cellar will make the air pure and sweet, and take away the musty smell.

To remove pitch and tar stains, rub lard on the stain and let it stand for a few hours. Sponge with spirits of turpentine until the stain is removed. If the color of the fabric is changed, sponge it with chloroform, and the color will be restored.

The shiny appearance caused by constant friction on blue serge suits and dresses may be remedied by rubbing with benzine, which can be obtained of any chemist, and directions for use are given on the bottle.

To take off stains on tan boots, apply a paste of fuller's earth and methylated spirit, and rub it off when dry. Two or three applications may be necessary. Afterward polish in the usual way.

To keep moths out of carpets have them taken up and beaten well, and the room scoured out, tack the carpet down, then sprinkle cayenne pepper around the edges, and there will be no danger from moths.

Rub stained knife handles with a bit of soft flannel dipped in lemon juice until all stains disappear. Then polish them with a soft chamois leather.

Touch warts with castor oil. That sometimes removes them if persisted in and is a harmless remedy.

TOILET TABLE HINTS

Using a soap that contains a generous proportion of vegetable oil, making a thick lather and rubbing it into the hands well, will keep the hands white and soft where one's employment is such that frequent washings are required.

LITTLE BOY'S SUIT

No. 5,169—A smart little man is made after this suit design. The long waisted blouse is a style that never loses its popularity, and is always becoming. A large collar gives breadth to the shoulder and straps hold the belt in position. Little knickerbockers made of the same material as the dress are worn underneath and are included in the pattern. Velveteen, broadcloth, linen and duck will all be suitable for the making. As illustrated, white corduroy was used for the suit with black leather belt and black silk tie. The medium size requires 1¾ yards of 54-inch material.

Why Women Love To Be Beautiful

ALL women would like to be beautiful.

History tells us how Queen Elizabeth, with all her ability, made a fool of herself because she was not willing that any other woman should be thought better looking than herself; because she could not be content with greatness.

Mme. de Stael, if history is to be believed, sighed often, in spite of her brains and the fame which she won thereby, for the personal beauty which was so hopelessly beyond her reach; and one may read between the lines of every one of George Eliot's novels her admiration and covetousness of physical good looks.

A fair face is a pleasant thing to behold, and they who are so fortunate as to possess it should be taught to look upon it as on any other talent, to use and not abuse it.

Every woman has the right to make herself as good looking as she can; nay, more, she owes it as a duty to society to do so.

Yet beauty, which is purely physical, is a frail thing at best, fading soon and surely under the hot suns and fierce storms of life; and the faded beauty which has nothing behind it, which is only a wreck, is pitiful indeed.

We all know pretty faces for which we care little or nothing, and homely countenances which are fair to our sight because of the sterling souls which underlie them.

There is a medium in all things, if one can find it, and the true lesson for children is that which teaches both the worth and worthlessness of personal beauty. A precious jewel shows to far greater advantage when handsomely set, and she who to culture of heart and mind adds rare personal attractions is well-nigh irresistible.

Yet the jewel is still valuable even if the setting be plain, and the connoisseur appreciates it, although the ignorant may not be dazzled by its light.

Some of the most beautiful women in the world never marry, or fail of happiness when they do.

It is an undeniable fact that beautiful women often make most unsatisfactory wives. The truth is that a beautiful woman wins admiration so easily that she often fails to realize that there are other qualities which must be cultivated in order to retain it. She is almost certain to be spoiled, and in consequence to be selfish.

The woman who possesses the highest attributes to character, womanliness, unselfishness, wifely affection and commonsense will make a far better wife than she who has only a lovely face and winning ways.

Copyright, 1906, by American-Journal-Examiner

IT was unlikely, of course, that Haggard could be mixed up with that chloral case; yet the girl's words had sounded ominous; and West happened to know that his employer was never without a supply of chloral. It would not do him any good to have been valet to a man charged with murder; the unpleasant notoriety might damage his prospects in applying for a new situation—there was no logical reason why it should, only West knew that many prejudices were not based on logic. Certainly something was wrong.

And so it happened at the time when Haggard rang for his manservant and asked him if the woman had gone, West—with the visitor's reference to a box at a music hall sticking in his mind—had just sent out for a late evening paper containing an account of the proceedings at the inquest in the Arabesque case.

In about ten minutes the paper came and within two minutes of opening it West had decided that he would give notice tonight. The dead man was Walter Grieve! Small need to ask himself now what the woman had meant: "You were the man with Walter in the box!"

West gave a startled whistle as he read the paragraph.

"The sooner I'm out of this the better," he told himself. "Whether Haggard was the man or not, there's going to be a row, and I'm best out of it!"

With this thought in his mind West went forthwith to find his employer. He heard the distant clanging of a door, but did not for the moment associate it with Haggard or the invariably-locked door of the tower, until he had found drawing-room, library, and bedroom empty. There being no answer to his knock on the bedroom door he walked in. Then he gave vent to a low whistle.

"So that's the little game," he said to himself, as his eyes fell on the strapped suit case, and the open drawers with their contents in disorder or littered on the floor—socks, collars, shirts. Every sign of panic-haste. "So that's the game. The woman's scared him, and he's going to bolt, and we shall all have to whistle for our wages. Rather glad I happened to come up when I did. But where's Haggard?"

That banging of the door that he had heard? From the clang it made it could only have been the heavy oak door of the tower. West walked down the corridor.

Sure enough there was the key of the door. Evidently he would find his master here. The tower, having no such associations for West as for Haggard, naturally had no terrors either; to him it was just a series of musty, earth-smelling, dark rooms. He pushed open the door.

It was quite dark inside; no glimmer or light anywhere to hint at Haggard's presence there, and the fact struck him as rather surprising. He paused on the threshold and shouted:

"Mr. Haggard, sir!"

There was no answer; but as he stood listening, West thought he could discern a faint sibilant whispering, as though some one was talking to himself in a low voice.

"This is a bit queer!" West observed, advancing a few steps. "Chilly it is here and quite a current of air, as though that old, nailed-up door was open—which it can't be, of course. Mr. Haggard, sir!"

No answer; only the scarcely audible sound of muttered words as of some one talking very fast without pause, reached him distinctly as he advanced.

Then West became quite sure that some one besides himself was in the tower, for a low, chuckling laugh was borne to his ears. West did not like the sound of that laugh at all.

"There's something wrong here," he instantly decided, on the strength of that laugh alone; it sounded so wild and unnatural.

He struck a match, and, holding the flickering light in front of him, walked in the direction of the sound.

Only a Lunatic

"It's the boss, right enough—or wrong enough," he added, after a quick indrawn breath, as he saw Philip Haggard standing there in the middle of the room in the darkness, staring straight ahead of him, muttering ceaselessly a string of inarticulate words.

West went up to him quickly, with an odd sensation of "gooseflesh." Haggard did not turn. The match was burning down to West's fingers, but he had noticed the dropped electric lamp; he picked it up, and lit it; then touched Haggard on the arm gently, and spoke his name.

For a moment Haggard ceased his muttering, and looked vacantly at West; then went on talking again.

"Clean off his head," whispered West to himself. "Come along, sir," locking his arm in Haggard's in spite of his nervous shrinking; West was not a coward. "You can't stay here in the dark. Come along with me, sir."

Haggard instantly obeyed him like a child, and the two walked out of the tower.

Indeed, Philip Haggard was become a child again in mind; and for that reason the girl who had loved Grieve would never see exacted the law's retribution she had fiercely promised herself. The law does not punish the insane.

"I say, isn't it awfully funny," was the only remark Haggard addressed to West, as they passed out of the tower; he spoke in a curiously boyish way, as though in his thoughts he was a boy again.

"What is funny, sir?" West said, to humor him.

Haggard turned two vacant eyes on West; then shook his head slowly.

"I don't know. I forget what I was thinking of, what amused me," he said, dully. "I seem quite in the dark."

A man who would henceforth be always in the dark!

CHAPTER CVI.

At Hagar's Cottage

"I CAN take you to your father tonight," Olga said to Rosamund.

"Yes, yes—at once; I can't bear to lose any time!" cried the girl, eagerly. "I am so impatient. Oh, it's so wonderful, your news, I can hardly realize it even yet; that the father I have mourned as dead is living! Where is he?"

"At a cottage close by Philip Haggard's house, the cottage of my old nurse," Olga said. "We got him there the night his partner attacked him. That he lived at all is due to Hagar's care and skill. He would have died if we had not found him."

"When did you see him last? You know that he is getting better?" demanded Rosamund eagerly.

"I left Hagar's cottage on the evening of the day after, and I have not been able to see her since, or dared to communicate with her——"

Rosamund's face fell.

"Then you do not know that my poor father——"

"Has really got better, are you going to say?" said Olga quickly. "Oh, but I am sure of it nevertheless. He was sleeping peacefully when I left the cottage a day later; Hagar said that there was no doubt he was out of danger. And we should have heard, of course, if if he had not got better. It could not then have been kept out of the hands of the police or the papers."

"Oh, if you had only called a qualified medical man in?" cried Rosamund.

Did You Win in the Post-Card Contest? No? Well, Try Again

You Have Another Chance to Try for a Prize

IS your name in the list of winners in the postal card love story contest? If not, you have another opportunity to try for a prize. The contest has been extended another week.

The number and quality of the pictures and thumb-nail love stories show that this contest is one of the most popular the BOSTON AMERICAN ever held.

Tell or sketch how and under what circumstances you first met your sweetheart.

Draw or tell it as well as you can and tell it as briefly as you can. Your answer must be on a post-card, and answers inclosed in envelopes will not be considered.

Address your post-card to the Post-Card Editor, BOSTON AMERICAN.

Winners in the Postal Card Love Story Contest

First Prize, $5—MISS ORRIE L. QUIMBY,
No. 35 Dover street, Lowell
Second Prize, $2—GEORGE McDONALD,
No. 102 Hunnewell terrace, Newton
Third Prize, $1—MISS JENNIE MacCLOSKEY,
No. 11 Isabella street, Boston
Fourth Prize, $1—MRS. MATHEWS, No. 25 Bowdoin street, Boston
Fifth Prize, $1—ALBERT E. WINTERS,
No. 6 Eldora street, Roxbury

For the best answer sent during the week a prize of $5 will be given. The next best answer will receive $2, and the next three will win $1 each.

Amateur artists who draw their answer should use black ink—not blue black—and attempt outline pictures only.

BRIGHT ANSWERS TO THE QUESTION

FOLLOWING are some of the best postals received to-day in answer to the question "Where did you meet your first sweetheart?" Many answers received to-day were inclosed in envelopes. No envelopes will be opened. Only post-cards will be considered:

ON A LOAD OF HAY

I MET my first and only sweetheart driving to town with a load of hay. I gave her a lift, got acquainted, in two weeks engaged, in four months we were married and have been riding happily together ever since.
H. J. SMITH.
No. 212 Danforth street, Portland, Me.

PRETTY STRONG HINT

I FIRST met my sweetheart at church, when one Sunday the clergy gave a sermon upon married life. As I stepped out from church a gentleman kept close by me and said: "Pardon me, but did you hear the sermon to-day?" "Certainly," I said, "this means for all gentlemen to hurry and get a wife." Six months after that we were married.
MRS. A. F. G.
No. 61 Whitcomb street, Webster.

WIFE COST TEN CENTS

I went to a church fair, a young lady asked me to take a chance on a napkin ring for ten cents. I took a fancy to her and did not take the chance right away, as I wanted to talk longer with her, having taken a liking to her. She said she did not think I had ten cents. When I showed her a handful of silver, then she was bound not to let me go until she got the money. After that I want to the fair every night, to the end that I got a wife for ten cents, and am not sorry.
JOSEPH WOOD.
No. 8 Marie avenue, Everett.

SHORT BUT SWEET

NIGHT in June,
Summer moon.
Wedding bells?
Not yet, but soon.
Nantucket. L. C. STONE.

MET NEAR THE ALTAR

I FIRST met my sweetheart in church, way down in Maine. She was the leading soprano in the choir. I sought an introduction after the service and was invited to her home. I was not slow in accepting the invitation. The next time we met we were engaged to be married. We now have a very happy home and a mother's pride and a father's joy in a son to gladden our hearts. I think the church a much safer place to find a sweetheart than a circus, theatre or dance hall.
West Somerville. WESLEY.

ON HALLOWE'EN

AT a Hallowe'en party I was playing a game where you take the peeling off an apple, all in one piece, and throw it over your head, and whatever letter it forms, they say, that will be the initial of your husband's first name. When I threw mine it landed on this young man's head, who happened to come in the room at the time. Consequences: Friendship, courtship, marriage.
MRS. M. C. M.
No. 39 Sharon street, Boston.

RIGHT IN TUNE

DANCING on the sidewalk, while the hurdy-gurdy played,
I met my only sweetheart, a winsome little maid.
Her hair down her back was braided, for she was scarcely eight,
While I eleven was turning—'twas then I met my fate.
Now she and I are married, for long years have passed away,
And our children dance on the sidewalk while the hurdy-gurdies play.
AKSEL F. GULLIKSEN.
No. 1,843 Washington street, Boston.

22 MEANS KISSES

SHE was a telegraph operator, I also was "A Knight of the Key." When not 8 we exchanged 73s, which soon led to 22s and sweet happiness.
T. P. BUCKLEY.
No. 118 Gardner street.

CUPID GOT BUSY

IT must have been Fate's doing, because ignorant of each other's existence, both he and she had decided on being bachelor and spinster for life. Then, presumably in pursuit of a career, but really in response to a jab from Fate's finger, she traveled 1,000 miles to the home of the bachelor, all unknowing that such a person existed. For the first time in six years he was at home when she arrived. An introduction, a handshake, a few words of conversation, and away into the depths of innocuous desuetude flew the dreams of spinsterhood and bachelordom. As swiftly followed her career, and within a few weeks the old maid and the bachelor were known no more. That was years and years ago and was the actual experience of Dorchester. MRS E. F. W.

Dreams That Are Marriage Omens

IF a girl dreams she is buying a present for a man she likes, she can rest assured that before long that man will be placing an engagement ring on her finger.

To dream that you are sailing on the open sea, quite out of sight of land, denotes that you will shortly marry, but that you will reside in a far-distant country.

If a girl sees herself cleaning or lighting a lamp, she may expect news from an absent friend, who will return and make her an offer of marriage.

If a girl sees herself in her dream at a railway station, mixing with a number of people, she may expect an offer of marriage from a stranger who is a great traveller.

To dream that you are dancing foretells a speedy marriage with the man you love, but it also predicts rather straitened means.

Illness Is Lucky

To find yourself lying in bed seriously ill is a dream which portends much future prosperity. A lover will shortly appear and your marriage will lead you into quite a different life. This is a most prosperous dream.

To dream that you are wearing glasses, or that in some way your sight is defective, denotes that you will shortly receive an offer of marriage from an elderly man who has plenty of money. If a girl finds herself writing a letter, or engaged in writing, she will hear speedy news of an absent lover, and she may safely count on an early and happy marriage.

To dream that you are being sued for money, or that in any way you are in money difficulties, denotes that you will soon receive an offer of marriage from an exceedingly wealthy man.

If a girl sees herself in her dream burning something, she may soon expect good news from an absent lover, and that her marriage will not be far distant.

Should a sister dream that she is talking to her brother, it portends her introduction to some gentleman who will be much attracted to her, and ultimately offer her his hand and heart.

To dream that you are on the top of a high hill denotes to the dreamer that some one is endeavoring to make mischief between her and the man she loves; but the scheme will fail, as her marriage will be hastened.

Should a girl find herself in her dream out in a heavy storm, lightning playing around her, she may expect soon to meet a foreigner, who will wish her to become his wife.

Death and Fortune

To dream that you are reading a notice of death in a newspaper foretells a written offer of marriage. It also predicts a very happy married life, with a devoted, affectionate husband.

Should a girl find herself in her dream, watching a ship far out at sea, she will shortly meet a stranger, who will ask her to marry her. Her married life will be spent far away from her home in foreign lands, but she will be extremely fortunate and happy.

To dream that you are working a sewing machine or engaged in needlework denotes that the dreamer will shortly be engaged in making her own wedding gown, and that she will find herself in a little while a happy wife.

If a girl finds herself cleaning silver she can shortly expect a visit from a man who has long loved her secretly, and who is about to ask her to become his wife.

To dream that you are busy packing up furniture preparatory to removing denotes that you will receive an offer of marriage from a widower, and that you will be very prosperous as regards money in your married life. It also denotes that the dreamer's husband will be older than herself.

When a girl dreams that she is having a quarrel, or is extremely annoyed, she is quite certain to quickly become acquainted with a gentleman whom she will marry after a very brief courtship. Her married life will be singularly free from trouble, but she will travel a great deal—in fact, have no settled home.

Itching Scalp, Dandruff and Falling Hair.

THESE symptoms indicate a diseased condition of the scalp and will always result in baldness if the condition is not corrected.

Every day adds to the number of men and women who have entirely lost their hair because of neglect. The hair can always be saved if proper treatment is administered in time, but after the hair roots are dead renewed growth is impossible. Don't delay until the hair is all gone, for nothing will grow hair on a shiny bald head.

At the Woodbury Institute treatment is given under the direct instructions of a specialist of long experience. Many thousands of cases are treated every year, and success is assured in every case.

Write to-day for question blank and full information; or, better still, call and talk with one of our specialists. Consultation free.

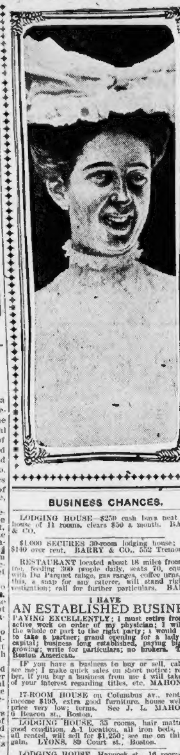
Watch for your own picture. It may appear any day. Watch out for the Camera Man when you go shopping. He may get you to-morrow or to-day.



GIRL IS DYING, 2 WOMEN AND MAN ARRESTED

Etta Johnson, Age 19, in Dangerous Condition at City Hospital, Confesses.

As a result of the story told by Etta Johnson, a pretty, blue-eyed girl of nineteen years, who lies critically ill at the City Hospital from the effects of an illegal operation, Mrs. May Agnes Littlefield, of No. 4 Fifth street, Lowell, was arrested last night on a charge of having performed the operation in Lowell several days ago. The police also locked up as accessories Duncan McMillan, aged twenty-nine, of No. 43 Union Park, and his divorced wife, Maud McRea, of Lowell.

Miss Johnson has identified Mrs. Littlefield as the woman who performed the operation, the latter admits her guilt, and McMillan admits having taken the Johnson girl to Lowell to have the operation performed.

The Johnson girl came to Boston about six months ago from Lowell. McMillan also came to Boston and here met Miss Johnson again frequently.

Some days ago McMillan took her to Lowell. They went to the divorced Mrs. McMillan, Miss McRea, and told her the circumstances. He said that he did not have money enough to pay for an operation, and his former wife lent him $15.

McMillan and the Johnson girl went to the house of the Littlefield woman. McMillan returned to Boston the same day, but the Johnson girl remained in Lowell with an aunt.

At the end of the week the girl, pale and weak, came back to Boston. A high fever developed. She went to the City Hospital last week. Yesterday her condition became so serious that the hospital authorities decided to tell the police.

Captain Dugan of police headquarters told the Lowell police on the telephone of the case, and last night the Littlefield and McRea women were arrested. Mrs. Littlefield was brought to Boston, and she was identified by the Johnson girl.

Inspectors Rooney and Burke of the Boston police went to the Union park address of McMillan and arrested him.

PIANOS AND ORGANS.

We Are Fighting The Big Piano Trust

And We Are Winning the Fight.

The name "Piano Trust" sounds big, looks powerful and frightens a good many small piano dealers. They wouldn't dare to cut the price on a "Piano Trust" instrument. We have been cutting their prices for months—cutting—slashing—and actually slaughtering their prices, and have been whipping the Big Piano Trust representatives in every N. E. State. We confess that we are making but little money doing it, but we are still in the ring and selling almost any make of high grade Pianos, new or second hand, at prices that make the Big Piano Trust sick.

Buy Pianos With Brains

For a small amount of money and the use of a fair amount of brains, you can get the best makes of pianos here at a price from $100 to $200 less than you can at any large piano dealers' warerooms.

This is a fact—Don't take anyone's word for it.—Investigate for yourself—use your brains and save your money.

ANOTHER SCHOOL YEAR

A Short Talk for the School Boys and Girls

If parents approve of what is written below, they will perhaps read it aloud to the children for whom it is intended.

Another year of work in the public schools of Boston opens to-morrow. In many New England cities and towns the schools are now in session.

You boys and girls receive in school the education and training that will give you success and a good life IF YOU DO YOUR SHARE.

Knowledge is the thing that makes us human beings different from animals. Knowledge makes our brains useful and our hands useful.

If a man or a woman every day, hour by hour, gave you money, or good things to eat, you school boys and girls would appreciate and encourage that giver.

The school teachers, although you often fail to be thankful, give you what is worth more than money. They give you the knowledge that will help you to make money as long as you live. They give you the training, THE HABIT OF REGULAR WORK, WITHOUT WHICH A MAN OR WOMAN CANNOT AMOUNT TO MUCH.

All over this earth you will find grown-up people SORRY THAT THEY NEGLECTED THEIR CHANCE IN SCHOOL. Many of them would give everything they have if they could only go back and employ usefully the school hours that they wasted.

Don't be like them when YOU grow up.

Remember that a boy or girl shows character in school. An intelligent boy or girl knows enough to work when the chance is offered.

You have been working with your muscles through the Summer, developing your bodies.

You all know that when you grow up it is your BRAIN that counts and not your muscles, if you amount to anything.

Now begins the time of year when you train your brain, when you try to get into your head the power that will make you useful and successful later on.

Remember that your teachers are men and women that work very hard, and remember, although you may not realize it, that TEACHING IS THE MOST IRRITATING AND THE MOST DIFFICULT WORK IN THE WORLD.

Have nothing to do with school children that are rude to teachers or careless in study. It is not a boy's or a girl's fault if the brain is not wonderful. But it IS the scholar's fault if opportunity is neglected.

The schoolboy who devotes his powers to mischief is not manly. He thinks that he is smart; in reality he is a baby, A LITTLE ANIMAL.

You would not be surprised to see a kitten or a puppy act badly in school. Such little animals have no brains; they do not know any better.

An American boy or girl should be ashamed to act like a little animal.

Boys, a few years from now a certain number among YOU are going to be the great men of this country.

A President of the United States may be sitting on the bench beside you. A great inventor, or writer, or lawyer may be working hard NEAR YOU.

The boys that are going to succeed, that are going to be talked about in the world, that the world is going to be proud of, HAVE NO BETTER CHANCE TO-DAY THAN YOU.

Try to be one of them. Be able to say at least "I HAVE DONE MY BEST. I have treated my teachers with respect and appreciation. I have tried to get all that I could out of my brain. I have shown my appreciation of the American public school and the good work done in this world by people that have lived here before me."

Do your best in school—and remember that respect for teachers comes first.

Just a LITTLE Bit Imperialistic?

The Nation Likes to Please Mr. Roosevelt, But Is Republicanism ENTIRELY Dead?

The American people want Mr. Roosevelt to have all the fun he can get out of life. They do not begrudge him anything in REASON. But they do feel that, as the head of the Nation, the chief of the people's SALARIED EMPLOYES, and not in any sense their ruler or dictator, he ought to set a good example.

It is NOT a good example for the head of a republic to summon the entire fleet of the country to the back door of his country house and amuse himself firing off guns.

It is not republican—IT IS A LITTLE IMPERIALISTIC—to load various ships of war with private friends and members of one's family, and then have all other ships of war that belong to the Nation parade for the amusement of a private party.

We note now the announcement that Mr. Roosevelt is going to Panama, and that three warships will accompany him on the trip. He will travel on one warship, and three others will go along.

Of course, this will be exciting. The King of England himself, when he goes from England to France, is satisfied to go on ONE boat. The German Emperor, on the contrary, usually has a few other warships, besides the one that carries him, circling around him and firing off guns.

Should Mr. Roosevelt do the same thing? WE DOUBT IT. We do not think the people approve of it.

Perhaps one extra boat might go along to take the President on board in case of accident—we certainly value his life very highly. We have not in our political arena very many men of his energy or independence. We shouldn't begrudge him an extra boat in case of wreck, or a parachute, or a small submarine, or a flying machine.

But we do say that it is too imperialistic for the President of the United States to go sailing down to poor little Panama with a crowd of warships around him. It looks a little too much like a Western cowboy sailing in to bully a small village with a large collection of guns.

Mr. Roosevelt has done many good things. And he has earned the secret but genuine hatred of many bad men.

He might well give up his imperialistic tendencies and add to his other good work the setting of an example of simple American republicanism.

Little Editorials from the People

"BEST SCRAP BOOK IN THE COUNTRY"

W. R. Hearst, Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I am happy to inform you that I am the proud possessor of the best scrap book in the country. I have saved every editorial page for a whole year, with those grand editorials and the writings of Mrs. Ella Wheeler Wilcox, Clara Morris, Dinkelspiel, Dorothy Dix, Rev. Thomas B. Gregory, Wex Jones, James J. Montague and others. With such a staff of writers, I think I can safely say that no other newspaper in this country can produce such a page for a scrap book, or that gives such splendid advice and such valuable instruction to the people, especially in regard to handling in an intelligent manner the only weapon the people possess, the ballot, to fight trusts, combines and grafters, and so have what rightfully belongs to us, a government by the people in the interests of the people.

It is to Hearst's BOSTON AMERICAN, especially its editorial page, that the people owe their gratitude for the able and courageous manner in which it shows up the trusts and combines of all kinds against the people's rights. It is to Hearst's BOSTON AMERICAN that credit is due for opening the people's eyes and educating them to a true sense of their political helplessness. The fact that the Independence League has sprung up all over New England proves that the BOSTON AMERICAN'S teaching has at last taken effect. The people have at last woke up and are working vigorously to have purity in politics.

The great Bulwer Lytton said, "The pen is mightier than the sword." But ballots, in the hands of the people, in the interests of the people, are mightier than swords or bullets. I sincerely hope that both Republicans and Democrats will throw all party difference to one side and join the Independence League, and so become united to fight for the rights of the people. Once more I thank the BOSTON AMERICAN for the editorials, which I intend to have bound in half-yearly books, and I will continue saving these editorials as long as I can. Sincerely yours, a workingman,

EDWARD DOUGHERTY,
No. 5 Hearn avenue, Taunton.

THEY ARE DISCOVERED IN THE ACT OF WORKING FOR THEIR BOARD

George Bernard Shaw

He Explains What the Proletariat Is, How It Springs Into Existence, and Its Tendencies

By George Bernard Shaw.

WHY is it that men with good characters are generally poor and men with bad characters very rich, and why is it, on the other hand, that men who are engaged in doing half an hour's steady work a day are enormously rich?

The reason is that there is no desire whatsoever to have wealth distributed by moral methods.

No one will give wealth in return for mere labor. If you want to produce wealth you must exercise your labor on material objects of some kind, and the first thing you have to exercise your labor on is the land—the earth itself.

The difficulty, of course, is that land is unfortunately not all of equal fertility. One man gets a piece of land on which you can make nothing grow. Another man will get a piece of land which in return for his labor produces great, bounteous crops.

Another man discovers that his land will not produce crops, but will produce coal and iron, but in order to get coal and iron he has to sink a shaft, which takes twenty years and an enormous amount of capital.

One man will have land, but without water, and that means that he will have to construct very expensive systems of irrigation in order to make his crops grow.

The condition of the people settled in that way will depend not on their own exertions, but to an enormous extent on the natural conditions under which they work.

If you want to bring about any sort of equality among these people you cannot allow them to be perfectly independent proprietors.

You must practically throw all their contributions into a pool, and they must share it.

That is a fact which our great landlords have always grasped and always acted upon.

The Proletariat

If you take a man with a very large estate you don't find that he parcels it out among a number of farmers or manufacturers and allows them to get out of the land just what a particular bit of land will return.

No! To do that he feels he would destroy all their incentive, and he says: "You, for instance, have got a very fertile piece of land, and I will charge you a very high rent, which will make you just as poor as the man who has got the poor piece of land."

To the man who has got a stream he says: "I will charge you a rent which will make you as poor as the man who has not got a stream, and that will put you all on an equality.

"You will all have to work hard, so that all the profits will come into my pocket and I will have an excellent time."

But the difficulty is that the moment the landlord does that, and becomes a very rich man, then his character goes to pieces, and he has only to invent different methods of amusing himself.

Let us come to a further stage of the social process. The population of the country goes on increasing; fresh people come into the world, and these fresh people have got no land left for them; everybody is already in possession of pieces of land, and people who have once got land are also tenacious of it.

These people who come in later are the proletariat. They can get no land to work on, and the only way they can live is by selling themselves in the market. That is the meaning of "the proletariat"—people who have to sell themselves.

Your price does not depend in the slightest degree on what your work may be worth or what your industry may bring forth. It really depends on the number of people being sold in the market at the same time.

How It Originates

There is nothing in the world that is so valuable to man as air to breathe, but there is such a supply of air that nobody pays anything for it; whereas there is nothing in the world that we could so easily dispense with as diamonds and rubies, but they are very scarce, and people pay fabulous prices for them.

When the proletariat consists only of a small body of people all the other people who have land are very anxious to get labor and spare themselves the trouble of having anything to do. Then wages, which is the price paid for the proletariat, are high.

But if the proletariat increase in number wages go down and down.

The English laborer's wages are only enough to keep him for the time you want him; there is not enough to keep him for the term of his natural life.

The term of the laborer's working age is very short. That is always the case where a class is underpaid and underfed. You can see that by looking at the death rate, but look also at the death rate of their babes. It is incredible that our present system is murdering children in heaps—and we don't seem to mind.

I want to show you exactly how the proletariat comes into existence.

There comes a time when people are competing with one another for employment and cannot afford to stand out for reasonable terms at all. If they stop work the laborer begins to starve at once, and therefore he must take the terms offered in the market.

And if these terms include slow poisoning, he has to put up with slow poisoning.

The people become repulsive. It is impossible for them to be clean in the conditions in which they live; the operation of living is so very painful for them that it requires an anaesthetic. The cheapest is gin and the next is beer. It is astonishing how many of them try to support life with them.

In every great city there comes a movement; always the rich class goes to the west and the other classes go to the east.

You cannot ride in the same railway carriage with these people; you cannot regard them as human beings.

You are quite right to hate poverty and the fruits of poverty, and they have always got to hate you. Not that they hate riches, but still they don't like to have the spectacle of riches always before them.
